No Bolshevism Yet.
Bombarding the Atom.
Don't Overload Your Nerves.
The President Runs Risks.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ROSE PASTOR STOKES, dead in Germany, was a radical young Jewish girl, who married a rich American, and later went to Russia.

She believed that she would live to see Bolshevism rule the United States, but was disappointed.

She might return many times on the reincarnation theory, and live in this country for many generations before seeing any radical change from our kind of government.

There are too many corner lots to be bought at a bargain, too many opportunities for private enterprise in this country to make Communism in any of its forms a possibility.

THIS NATION is interested in accumulating, not in dividing.

If Mrs. Stokes should come back twenty-five years hence she would probably find Bolshevism gone from Russia, and somebody sitting on a throne there wearing a crown.

Human beings do not give up old-fashioned methods until they have outgrown them.

SCIENTISTS attacking the atom report "progress."

That atom, a word from the Greek meaning "not to be cut," because men assumed that nothing could be smaller, is now explored by chemists and physicists as astronomers explore the solar system and the outside universe.

Terrific energy, unknown to men hitherto, is locked up in the atom, so much of it, that the atomic energy of one tablespoonful of water, would run the biggest steamship across the Atlantic and back. Scientists do not ask you to believe it, they PROVE it.

IN ATTACKING the atom, to release and use its energy, scientists use the "deuton," which is the nucleus of an extra heavyweight hydrogen called "Hydrogen Two."

These "deutons" or "atom guns" with an electric charge of 1,330,000 volts, are fired at the heart of an atom of lithium.

Scientists assure you that while only about one in 1,000,000 atomic bullets hits the mark, they nevertheless release ten times as much energy as they use in their bombardment!

You ask how they are going to harness and use that energy, and it all seems so unimportant to the layman.

Some day it may be more important to human welfare than the discovery of steam or electricity.

When Papin was trying to develop the steam engine, which he almost created, but could not quite develop, everybody would have called his work a waste of time.

PROF. HILL, of the University of London, addressing scientists gathered in Chicago, informs you that your nerves are like telegraph wires and will not stand overloading without "wire trouble." Like everything else in nature the nerves create heat when at work.

Prof. Hill has built a thermometer measuring a change in temperature as small as two millionths of a degree.

We live in an interesting universe with a temperature more than four hundred degrees below zero centigrade, in space, and above forty million degrees centigrade inside of the sun.

THE SUBSTANCES that we study and call matter, all made up of minute charges of "negative and positive" electricity, are so light that some float in the air, while others so heavy on some of the "dwarf stars" that a piece as big as the end of your thumb would weigh two thousand pounds.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, who enjoys danger and excitement and apparently knows nothing about fear, took his tiny sailboat out to sea yesterday, with a hard north wind blowing, on rough water.

It is to be hoped that some fast government ship is within hailing distance of that sailboat. The President is a strong swimmer and could keep afloat for some time if his boat should turn over.

The people hope that it will not turn. They need him, and some of them wish he would not run risks.

MR. HITLER continues to develop new ideas and tries each one. His latest plan is to tax bachelors so heavily that they will be driven into matrimony and the production of more little Nazis. His idea before that was to tell parents:

"If you don't do as I say, I will take your children away from you, and have them raised by the state in accordance with the best interests of Germany."

He has already written his own obituary and that of his party, but it may not be printed as he wrote it.

There is wisdom in the German poet's statement that no man can call himself happy before his last day.

AGAIN THE DOLLAR drops gently and again stocks rise, at one time reaching the highest level of the year.

Recently we were talking about "all-time lows" for stocks.

Yesterday it was an "almost all-time low" for the dollar.

Francs and pounds went up.

While this disturbs those that have dollars locked away in bonds or mortgages, it also disturbs the countries whose money is gone up.

A cheap dollar means more buying in the United States, less buying in the countries with dear money.

THE BIBLE tells us that man is made a little lower than the angels. Exceptionally bad sam-

MOLEY SAILS TO SAVE PARLEY

Roosevelt Messenger Carrying New Instructions

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Prof. Raymond F. Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, sailed today on the United States liner Manhattan in what was regarded as an outstanding attempt to bring order out of confusion at the London Economic Conference.

Refusing to answer a barrage of questions on the American viewpoint he would bring to the conference directly from President Roosevelt, Prof. Moley declared flatly that he had been given no specific orders.

ONLY 'ERRAND BOY'

He insisted that he was only a liaison agent—"an errand boy" was the way he put it. The No. 1 man of the President's "Brain Trust" said:

"I am looking forward with pleasure to seeing Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the other members of the delegations.

"I feel that the two weeks of preliminary work at the conference have been useful in the direction of exploring possibilities of action and the American delegation is ready to pursue vigorously the plans which they developed in the weeks before they sailed.

"I am, as the President stated yesterday, serving as a means

REPEAL WINS IN 3 MORE STATES

Wets See Prohibition End by 1934; Drys Scoff at Idea

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Hailing the repeal victories in Iowa, New Hampshire and Connecticut, anti-prohibitionists looked forward today to a possibility that the Eighteenth Amendment would be out of the Constitution before the year ends.

Dry leaders disputed this, as well as anti-prohibitionist assertions that repeal is certain sooner or later.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has indicated a part of the league strategy is to delay elections until 1934 where possible to better organize for the struggle.

He said:

"The drys could lose every election except one in 1933 and still push the contest to prevent repeal into 1934, when they can win."

On the other hand, Jouett Shouse, president of the Association against the Prohibition Amendment, said there is good prospect for repeal elections in 41 states this year.

Here is the situation:

Fourteen states have ordered ratification of repeal.

Nineteen others have definitely set elections for 1933.

Both prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists admit four others—Florida, Missouri, Montana and Utah—may vote before 1934.

Two states, Nebraska and South Dakota, have definitely decided not to vote until next year.

This leaves nine states.

KLINE HEARS VOTE QUIZ INDICT 13

Ex-Mayor Surprise Witness in 3rd Ward Fraud Inquiry

Former Mayor Charles H. Kline was a surprise witness before the federal grand jury election probers today as 13 more election board officials and others were indicted. The deposed former chief executive was in the grand jury room less than 10 minutes.

He entered the Federal Building by the Third avenue entrance and left without stopping to obtain a clerk's signature to his subpena and that would have entitled him to collect $1.50 witness fees.

Kline had been listed to appear later in the investigation, but made a request that he be permitted to testify today through his attorney, Edward G. Coll.

Among the throng of witnesses who testified was Thomas Dolan, one of the "Three Toms," alleged proprietors of the Monaca Club, whose trial on liquor-gambling charges was postponed yesterday until fall.

The ballot box of the Tenth District, Fourth Ward, which figured in alleged theft of ballots, was taken into the grand jury room this afternoon.

The 13 indicted today bring the total of the probe to 31. Those named today, on charges of falsifying returns at the November election and otherwise violating the election laws, were:

Eighth District, Third Ward—James Macri, judge; James A. Ventrone, and James Collins, inspectors; M. J. Ventrone, clerk; John Cunningham, Sam Mattes, employe of the County Tax Board, and John Stabile.

PLAN LINKED WITH FLOOD CONTROL

3 Flying to Capital To Appeal for Grant Of $59,000,000

Pittsburgh will seek from the federal government 10 storage reservoirs for flood and navigation control on the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers and the improvement of the city's downtown waterfront.

The decision to link the giant reservoir project costing $54,500,000 with the wharf construction program here estimated at $4,500,000 was made today at the Duquesne Club during a conference of officials of the city and the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh.

The Flood Commission's engineer, M. O. Leighton, assisted in putting the application for the direct grant of funds into form, and three city officials were to fly with it to Washington this afternoon.

INTEREST AT CAPITAL

In Washington, the flood and navigation control project, affecting interests in four states, has already claimed the attention of the administration. President Roosevelt has indicated that the next big waterways improvement would come in the Ohio Valley.

Joseph F. Guffey, recognized national figure in the Democratic party, has agreed to lend his help to the flood control plan, and the Pittsburgh delegation will confer with him at once in Washington.

Attending the conference today were Mayor John S. Herron, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, Chief City Engineer Charles

HOUSE CALLS ON ROOSEVELT

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT SEA, June 21.—(AP.)—Well rested from his midnight run into Gloucester, President Roosevelt set out to the open sea this afternoon with Little Harbor, near Portsmouth, N. H., as his goal for the night.

After a talk with Col. Edward M. House on foreign affairs, and Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, in Gloucester Harbor before noon, "Skipper" Roosevelt turned the Amberjack II through the six-mile canal behind Cape Ann, which juts far out to sea, and pointed across the dark waves under a cloudy sky for the north.

The President, bronzed by the sun and wind, was still bareheaded as he again put out to sea.

Receiving his official callers and wives of members of the crew at Gloucester he put on a clean white shirt, but there was no tie around his neck. He wore a gray knitted jacket for this dress-up occasion.

The President is almost sure now of making his scheduled stop at Portland, Me., on Friday, where he will pick up his youngest sons, Franklin, Jr., and John, as a part of the crew for the week's trip up to Campobello Island, N. B.

British Envoy Flies For Harvard Degree

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, left Washington by plane today for Boston where he will receive an honorary degree from Harvard University tomorrow.

He was much amused by rumors that he is going to Boston to meet President Roosevelt and discuss London conference matters.

CHICAGO, June 21.—(INS.)—Miss Virginia Dawn, 26-year-old stunt rider at the Century of Progress Exposition motordrome, was suffering today from fractures of the skull and hip after her motorcycle fell out of control while speeding at 50 miles an hour. Two hundred spectators witnessed the accident last night.

Plain Citizen Baruch Virtual Ruler of U. S.

Holds No Office, Takes Helm at Washington

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Bernard Mannes Baruch, rich in worldly possessions and the lore of politics, occupied a role unique in American history today when he took virtual charge of the Washington government without holding any particular office.

A private citizen, under no oath of allegiance or service, Baruch moved into the State Department to act as special adviser on all governmental problems.

In the absence of President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, Baruch appeared to be not the "power behind the throne" but the "figure on the throne."

Baruch will advise the President and the State Department on international policies; the President and cabinet officers on domestic affairs. This was the official explanation given by Assistant Secretary of State Moley just before turning his own office over to Baruch.

The naming of Baruch to such an unofficial, though tremendously influential post, was carefully delayed until Congress adjourned. The administration naturally expected an outburst of protests from Capitol Hill.

It could be attacked on the ground that no private citizen has a right, moral at least, to read the confidential diplomatic dispatches of the American government without first taking an oath of allegiance to the government.

Baruch time and again declined appointive offices in recent years.

SCHOOLEY AIDE GETS PAROLE

Albert L. Brandner, clerk in the office of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, was paroled for one year following his conviction on embezzlement charges in Criminal Court today.

Judge Harry H. Rowand said he understood from newspaper reports of his condition that Schooley never would be brought to trial. He said Brandner was "the unfortunate tool" of his superior.

The court also pointed out John M. McKibbin, chief clerk in the office, was paroled by Judge Elder W. Marshall a year ago, and David A. Rodgers, clerk in the city delinquent tax office, killed himself. Schooley has been reported seriously ill since his indictment.

Assistant District Attorney C. E. Pruger informed the court the District Attorney's office would not oppose a parole. Brandner was accused of embezzling about $6,500 in 1931.

Son Sobs at Message Sent by Alfonso; Royalty Absent

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 21.—(AP.)—The former Prince of the Asturias, who renounced his rights to the Spanish throne for love, was married in both civil and religious ceremonies today to Edelmira Ignacia Adriana Sampedro, beautiful daughter of a rich Cuban merchant.

The tall, blonde 26-year-old exile retained only the nominal title, Count Cavadonga. The bridegroom's disapproving family was conspicuously absent from the ceremony.

The former prince received a long telegram last night from his father, Former King Alfonso XIII, who now lives at Fontainbleau, France, and after reading its contents the son sobbed bitterly.

The Queen, however, sent a secret expression of a mother's understanding of the love of her son, for the Cuban girl, who is one year older than her husband.

The royal disapproval of the match had all but banished great Spanish names from the list of guests.

Patterson Due to Run For Mayor if Drafted

By MARK SHIELDS

Despite a declaration by Judge Frank P. Patterson that he was not a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, anti-Herron groups, composed of men powerful in industry and finance, have refused to accept a negative to their insistence.

Judge Patterson, it is understood on excellent authority, has told representatives of the independent movement that if they were unable to select any other man behind whom they might rally, he would consent to become a candidate for the nomination.

A conference on the subject was held last night, Judge Patterson meeting with members of groups which recently have become interested in political affairs. At that conference Judge Patterson was firm in his disinclination to run.

But a further conference was arranged for next week.

If by that time no other available man has been found behind whom there may be unity of anti-administration effort, there is every reason to believe that Judge Patterson will consent to enter the campaign, and will make an immediate announcement to that effect.

Today Judge Patterson said:

"I have firmly made up my mind that I cannot be a candidate, and it seems to me that those interested in my candidacy might well center their effort on Joseph N. Mackrell, who, if he would run, would have whatever support I could give him."

Mr. Mackrell had no comment to make on this statement, though he and Judge Patterson were in conference during the morning.

HEAT CLOSES SCHOOLS HERE

Old Sol, who was ushering out spring by making things hot in the Pittsburgh area to the tune of 92 degrees at 2 p. m., was a boon to tens of thousands of school kids.

The heat was blamed for the cement sidewalks adjoining the City-County Building in Diamond street buckling at noon. The sidewalk raised between four and five inches.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent, ordered elementary schools to close at noon and high and trade schools at 2 p. m.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, after scanning the thermometer, predicted the mercury would leap to near the 95 degree mark late today, equaling the record for this date hung up in 1884. Yesterday's high point was 92 at 7 p. m.

Accentuating the hot weather was the fact that today is the first of summer and the longest of the year—14 hours and 45 minutes between sunrise and sunset.

The mercury flirted around 100 throughout the Central and Middle West states yesterday, in some places leaping five and six degrees above 100.

HITLER RAIDS CRUSH HUGENBERG PARTY FIGHTING UNITS

CHANCELLOR'S COUP LEADS TO SLAYING

Nationalists' Leader Expected to Quit Cabinet Post

BERLIN, June 21.—(AP.)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Nazi administration moved against Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalist Party today with a series of raids on various party headquarters, in which one man was killed, and with orders dissolving the Nationalist auxiliary organizations.

The fatality occurred at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, where a man was shot during a raid on the party headquarters.

HUGENBERG SILENT

Dr. Hugenberg, whor ecently returned from London after he had been virtually repudiated by other German delegates to the world economic conference, was remaining incommunicado.

Some quarters asserted today's events would result in his resignation from the cabinet, in which he is Minister of Economics and Agriculture.

Before Hitler gained power in Germany the Nationalists were his allies. He no longer needs them now as he has a majority in the Reichstag without them and he has effectively nullified the power of the legislature anyway.

The government's dissolution order was directed against the Nationalist fighting units, which are comparable to the Nazi Storm Troopers. In addition the Bismarck Bund for youths of the Nationalist party was suppressed.

UNITS DISSOLVED

The fighting units were reported dissolved in Saxony, the Free State of Oldenburg, Wurttemberg, East Prussia and Prussia, including Berlin.

While it was officially emphasized that the action was not aimed at the Steel Helmet War Veterans' Association, nevertheless special Nazi commissioners were appointed at Aachen and Cologne to reorganize the Steel Helmet group.

Many arrests were made in connection with the raids on the Nationalist fighting units.

AUSTRIA SPURS WAR ON NAZIS

VIENNA, June 21.—(INS.)—Ruthless suppression of the Nazi party in Austria was continued by authorities today.

Newspapers which sprang up overnight to replace suppressed Nazi publications were promptly banned and confiscated.

Maj. Emil Fey, chief of police, and Heimwehren leader, reaffirmed his determination to wipe out the Brownshirts, who were busily engaged in attempting to reform their ranks and establish new headquarters in the Tyrol or Styria, where the party is strongest.

HOARDER DEFIES GOVERNMENT

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt and the United States government have been openly defied by a Philadelphia gold hoarder, described by federal investigators as a "textile manufacturer whose name may be disclosed later."

The manufacturer is supposed to have $120,000 in gold coins cached in safety deposit boxes.

Agents for the United States Bureau of Investigation interviewed the gold owner yesterday. They explained all gold must be turned into the United States Treasury under a presidential decree.

But they reported back to headquarters that the threat of "pitiless publicity for hoarders" left the manufacturer unmoved. The agents said they would await further orders from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

LABORITE FLAYS LADY ASTOR

NAVAL RESERVE SLASH VETOED

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt has ordered substantial restoration of Naval Reserve activities, virtually wiped out by the economy drive of Budget Director Douglas, Universal Service has learned.

Vetoing Douglas' slash in the reserve's appropriation from $3,346,960 to $600,000, the President has granted a budget of $2,115,653 for the coming year, two-thirds of the original allowance.

Under Douglas' cut all pay for enlisted men and officers in the Naval Reserve stopped May 20, all stations would have been closed down June 26, and reserve activities of every kind would have ceased except for such drills as could be carried on under a volunteer status.

The President's order restores full pay to officers and men for all active service, places naval air reservists back on a flying basis and entails the opening of all such Naval Reserve establishments as are necessary to carry out a full program for 1933-1934.

Austrian Chancellor Backed by Britain

LONDON, June 21.—(INS.)—The policies of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria, who has been suppressing the Nazi movement with an iron hand, have the sympathy of the British government, it was announced in the House of Commons today.

Capt. Anthony Eden, under-secretary for foreign affairs, paid tribute to the efforts of Dollfuss "to establish the finances of Austria on a sound basis and maintain the authority and independence of that state."

'She Gives Me Pain,' He Shouts as Plea For Idle Is Halted

LONDON, June 21.—(INS.)—Bluntly informing her that she "gives me a pain," a Laborite member of the House of Commons subjected Lady Astor to a scathing personal attack in Parliament this afternoon.

The speaker was William Dobbie, London Laborite, who became incensed when Lady Astor interrupted his description of distress among Britain's unemployed. The flare-up came during an unemployment debate.

The moment she interrupted him, Dobbie turned on the only American-born woman member of the House. He shouted:

"I protest against the callous and cruel attitude of well-dressed and well-fed people in this House against the hungry people of this country."

Lady Astor remarked:

"You don't look hungry."

Dobbie said:

"You may laugh and sneer at the unemployed. You'll laugh and sneer once too often."

He then proceeded with his speech, but Viscountess Astor again interrupted him.

Dobbie in exasperation said:

"She can't help it. Where there's no sense there's no feeling."

Lady Astor, alluding to a remark made by Dobbie during his address, said:

"We don't drink champagne."

Dobbie expostulated:

"By God, she gives me a pain listening to her. I don't know whether she accuses some of us of drinking the champagne. We couldn't afford it if we wanted to."

The speaker of the House finally restored order.

AUTO CAPITAL HUM SWELLS

DETROIT, June 21.—(INS.)—The hum of industry, so long muted in the automobile capital of the world, was swelling this week into a roar that betokened the advent of a new period of prosperity.

The spectacular recovery of the motor industry continued with no evidence of a let-down. The usual seasonal summer slump so far has failed to appear.

The weekly registration report of R. L. Polk & Co. indicated that car sales for May were approximately 165,000 units, 40 per cent higher than April, 20 per cent above May of 1932, and 11.5 per cent over the total for June, 1932, last year's best sales month.

The tradepaper, Steel, reported that more iron and steel is now moving into the Michigan motor plants than at any time since the beginning of the depression.

GIRL CHARGES LONG DAY TO EMPLOYER

Mirror Plant Owner Fined for Violating State Labor Law

Girls working at the National Mirror Works in Springdale punched the clock at 5:30 after a 10-hour day, but were told to keep on working and did, Miss Margaret Hochbein, an employe, told state labor inspectors today.

She explained that the girls worked more than the prescribed 54 hours a week after L. H. Samuels, owner of the works, pleaded guilty to violating the state law regulating the working hours of women.

Samuels was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Earl C. Shoop, of Springdale.

He was represented by Attorney Lex Mitchell. No testimony was given, although State Labor Inspectors A. P. Huckestein and Benjamin F. Davis attended.

Miss Hoffbein told Huckestein that 11 women and 20 young men had worked since last September for an average of $5 a week, approximately 9 cents an hour.

She said that the women reported at 7:30 a. m. and, when 5:30 p. m. came, they were instructed to punch the clocks, but were often forced to work overtime. She added that often the women worked 56 and 57 hours a week. The law provides a limit of 54 hours.

She said:

"Until last September, we made $8 and $9 a week, but since then have been gradually cut."

Their job was cleaning mirrors, making picture frames.

CHILD EXPERT FOR SPANKING

IOWA CITY, Ia., June 21.—(AP.)—The good sound spanking still has its place in this modern world.

In fact, said Dr. Esther L. Richards, professor of psychiatry at John Hopkins University, science has found no substitute for it. She said, in addressing the seventh annual conference of child welfare:

"If you find that your child has scattered the contents of the ice box over the kitchen floor, give him a sound spanking.

"There is no use trying to reason with a small child. The child will listen because he has nothing better to do, but it is time wasted in telling him why he should or should not do a thing."

Pittsburgher Found Hanging From Tree

DANVILLE, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—After a search of several hours, the body of Daniel W. Cook, 66, retired Pittsburgh railway employe, was found last evening suspended from a small tree near the Danville State Hospital.

Cook, who for several years lived with a brother, left earlier in the day to pick strawberries. He was unmarried.

OFFICER SHOT IN DUEL WITH PROWLER

Gun Battle Rouses Shadyside District; Suspect Flees

Residents of the exclusive Shadyside district were startled out of their sleep early today by a pistol battle in which a prowler wounded a policeman.

Special Patrolman J. W. Gardner, 27, who guards the homes of well-to-do residents, reported finding a Negro prowling about the home of Miss Alice Gloninger and her brother, J. H. Gloninger, at 4923 Wallingford street.

The prowler fired several shots at Gardner, the patrolman said. He returned the fire as the man fled.

One shot ripped through Gardner's shirt and grazed his side. He was treated at Homeopathic Hospital.

A month ago Patrolman John Harris was fired on in a similar battle.

Another Negro prowler was routed with a milk bottle early today. Bothered by the heat, Harry Feldman, dozing on his front porch at 2300 Fifth avenue, reported he awakened in time to see the prowler. Feldman hurled the bottle at him, but missed. The man fled.

REPEAL CARRIES 3 MORE STATES

Mississippi and Virginia—the Legislatures will not meet until 1934, unless there is a special session.

Legislatures failed to act or governors vetoed a bill for the repeal election in Colorado, Georgia, Kansas, North Dakota and Oklahoma.

The drys assert this assures 11 states in which there is no chance for a vote this year.

Iowa Deserts Drys, Lines Up for Repeal

Associated Press.

Long-dry Iowa, with Connecticut and New Hampshire, today brought to 14 the states which in unbroken succession have voted to knock the Eighteenth Amendment out of the Constitution.

The Hawkeye state's swing away from the position she had maintained since 1916 left drys fixing their hope for a halt in the parade on Alabama and Arkansas, both voting July 18.

In the doubtful column when the balloting began, Iowa brought in a substantial majority for the repeal amendment, even though it was not as big as that in Connecticut and New Hampshire.

But with 611,000 votes in, and only 130 precincts missing, her count was 368,691 for repeal and 242,612 against. That meant she had instructed all of her 99 delegates to the state convention July 10 to vote for repeal.

From the start there had been no question about what New Hampshire and Connecticut would do. The former, with a light ballot and only one small town missing, voted 75,999 to 30,340 for repeal.

In like fashion, Connecticut gave a 6 to 1 majority to the Twenty-first Amendment, which repeals the Eighteenth.

With these three out of the way, Alabama and Arkansas provided the next major battleground. The pros and the antis are concentrating on them, even though California and West Virginia do vote earlier, on June 27.

MAIL CONTRACT PROBE OPENS

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(INS.)—A Senate inquiry into ocean and air mail contracts to determine in particular whether foreign interests control American shipping lines was inaugurated today by the Black special committee.

A. G. Patterson, former president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, launched the investigation by sending out a questionnaire to all American shipping lines and aviation companies, now receiving subsidies in the form of mail contracts.

Patterson will serve as special counsel for the committee.

The questionnaires called upon the air and ocean lines to file a complete statement of corporate finances. The committee was intent on learning whether shipping companies were organized on loans from the government to operate lines of vessels later purchased from the Shipping Board and paid for with the subsidies obtained on mail contracts.

JURY DEBATES MITCHELL'S FATE

Once Powerful Banker Faces Prison in Tax Trial

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—The case of Charles E. Mitchell, until recently a powerful figure in the banking world, who is charged with defrauding the government of more than $850,000 in income taxes, was given to a Federal Court jury today.

At 12:25, daylight saving time, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard concluded his charge and the case which has been on trial since May 11, was turned over to the 12 men who will decide whether or not Mitchell is guilty of having evaded tax payments.

The jury includes two engineers, a contractor, an architect and one publicity man.

The maximum prison sentence, should Mitchell be convicted, would be 10 years and the maximum fine $20,000. There are two counts in the indictment, charges involving the sale to Mrs. Mitchell of 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock in 1929, and his receipt that year of $666,666.67 from a management fund are combined in one count.

The other count deals with sale of Anaconda Copper stock in 1930 to W. D. Thornton, president of the Greene Cananea Copper Company.

As he concluded his charge, the judge warned the jury against being swayed in its verdict "by any sympathy you may feel for this defendant." He said they might convict or acquit the defendant on both counts or find him guilty on one and innocent on the other.

ROUTLEY TRIAL CONTINUES

Trial was proceeding today against James E. Routley, former assistant chief clerk to the county commissioners, and C. C. Benz, former chief clerk in the county purchasing department, charged with conspiracy in having county-purchased gasoline placed in their private automobiles.

Edward M. Kenna, county road superintendent and proprietor of the Peoples Service Station, C. W. Doherty, John J. Gallagher and Patrick J. Swift are to be arraigned later.

Auditor M. C. Conick, chief witness for the state, testified Routley had procured 11,149 gallons of gasoline, valued at $2,416, and Benz 2,993 gallons valued at $669 over a period of three years. E. E. Harris, manager of the service station, was the only other witness yesterday.

Saint-Gaudens Returns; Found Art Less 'Arty'

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—Returning today from three months in Europe, Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, said he found art linked with the development of a new social order.

He said:

"Art is emerging from a transition period just as the social order is taking on a new form after years of fumbling with outworn conventions.

"Painters will once again serve the public rather than cater to their own fastidious ideas."

Italians, he said, "are injecting as much excitement into their art as into their engineering." Europeans in general, he said, emerging from economic suppression are "fostering art which is an inherent, needed part of our lives and which has endured longer than steel rails and the stock exchange."

While abroad, Saint-Gaudens organized European sections of the thirty-first International which will be held in Pittsburgh in October.

ENRAGED WIFE KILLS 'OTHER WOMAN,' WOUNDS HUSBAND

PAIR TRAPPED BY SURPRISE RETURN

Grabs Daughter's Rifle, Halts Couple's Flight With Bullets

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 21.—(AP.)—A wife, enraged at finding her husband with a strange woman in their home, shot and killed the woman and seriously wounded her husband.

The story of the double shooting was told in detail by the wife, Mrs. Ethel Pusateri, 45, police said, as they prepared to file charges of second-degree murder against her.

Mrs. Pusateri and her daughter, Nancy, 18, had gone to Cincinnati to visit. They returned unexpectedly shortly before midnight and found the house darkened.

Mrs. Pusateri was attracted by a noise in an upstairs room, she said, and Nancy called out to her father, August Pusateri, 46, wholesale fruit dealer.

He soon afterward appeared at the head of the stairs to request Nancy to have the automobile filled with gasoline. Mrs. Pusateri said she went to a sun porch to await Nancy's return.

Pusateri and the woman, identified by relatives today as Mrs. Ermatrude Batterson McCoy, 28, came down the stairs, evidently believing Mrs. Pusateri had accompanied her daughter. As they approached the door and prepared to leave, Mrs. Pusateri said she snatched a rifle owned by her daughter and fired four times.

She then called a private hospital, where police found the woman dead and Pusateri wounded in the chest. The woman had been shot through the head.

Police found Mrs. Pusateri in the yard taking off her shoes. She appeared dazed, but later she told her story at the police station.

Mrs. McCoy, wife of Edward McCoy, Norfolk and Western Railroad machinist, was well known here.

TWO LOVE BIRDS WRECK NAVY ROMANCE

Other Girl's Pets Lead To Divorce for Bellevue Wife

A matrimonial barque launched at Annapolis, where many a sailorman's romance has its beginning, went on the rocks today when Alice H. Robinson, 36, of Bellevue, was granted a divorce from Lieut. James W. Robinson, U. S. N.

The Robinson romance, unlike many of those that bud in Annapolis, did not have a Naval Academy backgrnund. Robinson was a member of the Naval Reserve and now is stationed on the cruiser U. S. S. Pensacola.

Mrs. Robinson was granted a decree by Judge A. B. Reid. She testified her husband came home from a southern cruise once with two love birds. She said:

"I asked him if he had got them on his South American cruise, and he said 'no,' that they belonged to a girl in whose apartment he was staying."

Another time he wanted a divorce, she said, because he had met "a wonderful girl."

Once fraternity brothers had brought her husband home and helped her put him to bed because he was intoxicated, she added.

They were married at Annapolis May 26, 1921. The wife's mother, Mrs. S. V. Hunnings, said the daughter and her child now live with her.

The wife testified she found two letters one day on her dining room table, one addressed to her and the other to their daughter. She said he wrote that he was going to kill himself, and told her she had been a good wife and he hoped she would get a "better break next time."

She continued:

"I looked around for him and finally found him sitting in the garage with the motor running and the doors closed."

The wife said she obtained aid and rescued him.

BUCK 'BREAKS' ON STAND IN KIDNAP CASE

Suspect Collapses After Peggy McMath Tells Her Story

BARNSTABLE, Mass., June 21. (AP.)—Cyril Buck, who with his brother, Kenneth, is charged with the kidnaping of Margaret (Peggy) McMath, collapsed on the witness stand in Barnstable Superior Court today as he started to testify in his own defense.

Willard Carleton, atorney for Cyril, gave an opening address to the jury and then called his client to the stand. Cyril had answered only a few questions when Carleton asked him:

"Do you own your own home?"

The defendant coveredh is face withh is hands, reeled on the stand and clutched the rail for support. Attendants rushed to him and he was assisted to a chair, weeping.

RECESS CALLED

A moment later he looked appealingly through his tears at Judge Edward F. Hanify and the judge called an hour recess to "allow the witness to recover."

Cyril Buck had followed Peggy to the stand after the state rested its case.

Peggy told the jury that during the three days she was in the hands of the kidnaper she wore a pair of "toy handcuffs" that she could take off and put on at will.

Peggy was the last witness of the prosecution.

She was taken from the Harwich Center Grammar School on May 2 and returned three days later after $60,000 ransom had been paid. The money was recovered in the home of Kenneth Buck, the prosecution said.

Peggy identified a note written to her by her father and on which she had scribbled an answer. The answer said she was 'happy," although she would rather be home and it referred to her captor as "a nice man."

The child indicated in her testimony that she thought her kidnaper was her friend.

TOY HANDCUFFS

Peggy testified the handcuffs hurt her wrists, that there were no locks on them and that she frequently took them off.

The witness, dressed in a blue gingham dress, indicated she believed the man who stayed with her in the low cellar was shielding her from the "gang."

After being questioned further by Crossley regarding notes exchanged with her father during the time she was in the hands of the kidnaper, Elias Burnick, counsel for Kenneth, took over the questioning.

State Detective Ernest Bradford then described the car alleged to have been used by Kenneth.

STOLEN PATIENT HUNT FAILS

No trace had been found by police today of Peter Sebolsky, alias Morrison, 25, and two men who carried him from his bed in Homeopathic Hospital Monday night.

Police said that there was danger of a gangrene infection and the probability that Sebolsky may become a cripple if he does not receive medical attention.

Sebolsky, shot in the right leg when he fled from police who sought him for questioning in connection with store robberies in Hazelwood, was unguarded in the hospital because police were assured he could not move until the 35-pound weight was removed from his leg.

Because of the condition of the prisoner-patient, police believed friends had hidden him in Pittsburgh. Capt. John Barry said that an investigation revealed that Sebolsky had never lived in Chicago. Reports that gangsters of the Chicago suburb had spirited him away, were scouted by Barry.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 21.—(INS.)—A week ago the silent Arctic hid the fate of "Smiling Jimmy" Mattern.

Despite a far-flung search the grim Land of the Northern Lights today continued to hold its secret.

Naval and coast guard vessels which patrol the Bering Sea have searched in vain and naval airmen and Alaskan fliers have failed to find a trace of the globe-circling solo birdman who hopped from Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Nome, Alaska, last Wednesday on the most dangerous stretch of his projected round-the-world flight.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure continues over the southern states, but the pressure is diminishing. The highest reported this morning is 30.02 inches at a number of places in Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana. Another high is spreading over the northern plains, and the Upper Mississippi Valley, causing a change to moderately cool weather over that section. Pressure is low over the St. Lawrence Valley and southwestward over the lake region and the Ohio Valley states to the far Southwest, thence northward over the Rocky Mountain states. As a result of this low pressure there is a region of showery conditions extending from Lake Superior southwestward to New Mexico. The rainfall was light generally, but moderately heavy in some localities. Temperature changes were towards warmer over the Ohio Valley states while over the plains states the changes were towards cooler. Maximum terperatures were 96 to 98 degrees yesterday over the Ohio Valley states and westward over Iowa and Wisconsin.

BAKERY BLAST INJURES GIRL

Accumulated gas fumes in a bakery oven exploded today, causing severe burns to Miss Lois McNary, 21, of 1815 Beaver avenue. She was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

The blast smashed windows in the baker shop, owned by her father, E. S. McNary.

Police reported that when the young woman attempted to light the oven the fumes burst into flame.

Air rushing from a safety valve gave warning to four men today in time for them to escape before a compressed air tank blew up in the factory of the Damascus Bronze Company, division of the National Bearing Metals Corporation, 928 Shore avenue, North Side. The blast wrecked the tank and shattered windows in the plant and along Reedsdale street.

Evicted Woman Re-Enters Home After 2-Day Vigil

After two days and a night spent watching over her furniture, placed in the front yard of her home under eviction proceedings, Miss Ada E. Cross, 60, of 4248 Stanley street, re-entered that home today.

Men of the neighborhood opened up the house closed by sheriff's deputies, carried in the few belongings and allowed the little gray-haired lady in gingham to gain shelter from the burning sun in the house she has occupied for 30 years.

If any representatives of the law were present, they made no protests.

KEPT STEADY VIGIL

Miss Cross was evicted Monday on information made by a building and loan association, which holds the mortgage on a modest frame home given her by her brother.

Since that time she has kept watch, sitting under a small shade tree in the front yard.

Today as she walked back across the threshold, she said:

"I know where my home is, even if others don't. I'll stick right here."

ON PORCH ALL NIGHT

The Family Society had provided a room in the neighborhood for her to which she might move her belongings, but she refused. All Monday night she sat on the front porch, but last night neighbors took her in and gave her a comfortable place to sleep.

A letter of credit to a grocer for food was also offered by the Family Society.

The woman said today, looking around at her scattered possessions:

"You don't feel like eating when it's like this."

She has lived alone in the house for a number of years and has relatives in Cleveland and near Huntingdon, Pa.

He resigned in 1902 to assume duties as Senator from the Forty-second District. While State Senator, he introduced the first bill for the union of Pittsburgh and Allegheny. He was appointed by Gov. Tener in 1911 as a member of the City Council of Nine after the old common Council was eliminated and elected first president of the new Council.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Neeb Goehring; three sons, Dr. William N., Harvey J. and Louis M.; one daughter, Flora G. Brown, of Plainfield, N. J., and seven grandsons. Funeral services will be held Friday.

Police said the woman evidently took the poison after a party in the Taggart home last night.

An argument followed the party, police said.

THE WORLD'S STATESMEN AT TINY DESKS AS PREMIER MacDONALD ADDRESSED CONFERENCE DINNER COMPANIONS: THE CHIEF BRITISH, U. S. DELEGATES CROWDS AT THE CONFERENCE BUILDING, THE GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM IN SOUTH KENSINGTON

PRIVATE GROUP MAY SEEK U. S. MILLIONS

A private corporation to construct with federal funds public works projects costing more than $17,600,000 may be organized here as part of Allegheny County's program to borrow more than $27,000,000 in federal funds under the recently signed administration public works bill. The $17,600,000 would be only for self-liquidating projects, the entire program including approximately $10,000,000 additional for highway projects.

Assistant County Solicitor Churchill Mehard, who has been negotiating with government officials for the loan, reported to the County Commissioners that the organization of a private company here would be one of the ways suggested for making the loan possible. The private concern would pay the government back out of moneys collected from the projects, all of which would be under the self-liquidating class.

Mehard also stated there is one suggestion made that the federal government build the self-liquidating projects and lease them to the county until the time when the cost of construction has been recovered through earnings.

Included in the county's self-liquidating projects will be the Wabash tube and bridge, the Homestead high level bridge, the Aspinwall-Highland Park bridge, the Natrona-Braeburn bridge, a new Glenwood bridge, a new span at Dravosburg and the North Park swimming pool and water system. All the proposed bridges would be toll spans and money collected from the users of the swimming pool would pay for the construction of the pool and the piping of the water to the park.

Mehard stated that the county hopes to obtain all its $27,000,000 either under the self-liquidating project clause or from Pennsylvania's share of the direct grant of not less than $400,000,000 made by the federal government to the states. A list of the highway projects has been sent to Gov. Pinchot by Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

In addition to the direct grant to the states, the federal government also will aid in building federal roads throughout the country.

RAILS TO DELAY WAGE SLASH

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Indications were seen here today that railroad managements will yield their insistence that a wage reduction for their employes to the administration request for a delay.

Although a complete backdown on the part of the railroad managers was not expected, the feeling was expressed that they will at least yield to the extent of waiving the 12½ per cent additional reduction which they notified the union chiefs last week would become effective November 1.

Probabilities appeared to be that the suggestion for maintenance of the present status, advanced yesterday by Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportation and administration railroad spokesman, will be accepted.

One of the questions discussed at today's conference between Eastman and the management committee of the carriers was whether the status quo shall be maintained for six months from November 1.

Navy Will Spend $86,000,000 on Ships

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—The Acting Secretary of the Navy, Henry L. Roosevelt, said today the navy plans to spend $86,000,000 on ship construction in the 1934 fiscal year, which begins July 1.

The Navy had just allotted two submarines of 1,300 tons each for construction at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, one of the new gunboats to the navy yard in New York and the other to the Charleston, S. C. navy yard.

Auto Fire Ties Up Downtown Traffic

Traffic was tied up for several minutes today at Smithfield street and Seventh avenue, as firemen extinguished an automobile blaze. The car was owned by John Lee Higgins, 8 Bennett place, Homewood. Firemen blamed defective wiring.

M. L. Benedum On Industrial Planning Board

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Plans for "a safer future industry" through a long range economic planning program in which the Department of Commerce will work with a committee of recognized business leaders and economists were described by Secretary of Commerce Roper today.

On the committee is M. L. Benedum, of Pittsburgh.

The first meeting will be held June 26. Secretary Roper said he looked to these practical business leaders to guide him in gearing the services of his department to the needs of business during the emergency period, with a view to the normal activities later.

The personnel of the committee, all of whom were recommended by a small group of business leaders, reads like a directory of the business brains of the country. It includes:

FLOOD CONTROL SPURRED

M. Reppert, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, Mr. Leighton, City Engineer Ross M. Reigel, City Councilman George S. Oliver and George S. Davison, chairman of the Flood Commission.

WHARF PROJECT

The city's wharf improvement plan includes wide bolt boulevards from Smithfield street on the Monongahela River around the Point to Tenth street on the Allegheny River.

The purpose of Leighton's trip to Pittsburgh today is to gather data on the benefits to be derived here in the flood and navigation control plan.

PROPOSED DAM SITES

The 10 dams proposed by the Flood Commission are on French Creek near Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Tionesta Creek, near Tionesta, Pa.; Red Bank Creek, below Brookville, Pa.; Mahoning Creek, below Punxsutawney, Pa.; Crooked Creek, in Armstrong County, Pa.; the Conemaugh River and Loyalhanna Creek, near Saltsburg, Pa.; the Youghiogheny River, above Confluence, Pa.; the Tygart Valley River, above Grafton, W. Va., and the West Fork River, above Clarksburg, W. Va.

While these dams are not so large and do not represent as big an investment as was originally suggested by government engineers, the Flood Commission holds that this system would take six feet out of the peak of floods at Pittsburgh and eliminate 80 per cent of the existing flood damage.

The area in the lower downtown "triangle," at present handicapped by threat of flood damage, would acquire considerable increased value out of flood control, it is believed. This same applies to property in many towns along the valleys.

Wharf sites and riparian rights would also become more valuable, due to the assured water levels.

Moley 'Politician,' Colleague Asserts

EVANSTON, Ill., June 21.—(AP.)—The term "politician" rather than "economist" was applied to Prof. Raymond Moley, adviser to President Roosevelt, by Harry D. Gideonse, associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago, in an address before the Midwest Institute of the International Relations last night. The professor said:

"At Columbia University, Mr. Moley was an expert politician and not an economist."

COAL INDUSTRY CODE FAILURE, SAYS LEWIS

SCRANTON, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—Ready to discuss wages with mine owners, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, says the Roosevelt administration finds the operator's so-called "code of fair competition" adopted in Chicago "completely unacceptable."

In a statement sent her yesterday from Washington, Lewis said the union is ready for a wage conference with the operators under the terms of the industrial recovery act but that the operators have made no move in this direction.

He declared Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the act, has notified the mine owners that unless they act soon to aid the industry, President Roosevelt will take action.

Lewis added that Johnson is "serving official notice on the coal operators that the so-called 'code of fair competition' adopted in Chicago last week is completely unacceptable and does not carry out either the letter or the spirit of the recovery act."

Lewis described as "a blow to recently organized company unions," Johnson's notification of the Pittsburgh Coal Company that its company union "was obviously intended to evade and nullify the collective bargaining provisions" of the act.

Pittsburgh Coal Denies Controversy With Johnson

J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, issued a prepared statement today relating to Lewis' assertions. It said:

"Mr. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, states that neither he nor the Pittsburgh Coal Company has any controversy with Gen. Johnson on any question, but the company and its officers are cooperating with Gen. Johnson as the general knows.

"Furthermore, the Pittsburgh Coal Company is not interested in any statement made by unauthorized persons concerning its policies or its relations with government officials, and therefore has no comment to make on such statements."

CITY OFFICIALS CONSULT R.F.C.

City officials were leaving by airplane for Washington today to ask Reconstruction Finance Corporation officials just what Pittsburgh can expect in government aid on work projects.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, City Engineer C. M. Reppert and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt were to represent the city in the conversations.

Reppert said that no definite plans would be discussed, since there has been no indication from the R. F. C. as to what help it is prepared to offer.

Mentioned as possible projects for which government aid might be sought are a $1,500,000 tunnel under Schenley Park with a bridge connecting to Beechwood boulevard to provide a direct approach to highways leaving the city to the East. Wharf improvements, street, sewer and waterworks projects may be discussed.

How 'New Deal' Restores Jobs, Raises Prices

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 21.—While the domestic recovery program, now getting up steam, aims at mass improvement, the primary interest of the nation's 122 millions—more than 10 per cent of whom are out of work—is how it will affect them individually.

How will each benefit? If he is out of work, will that person get a job? If he has a job will his pay be increased? His hours of labor shortened? Will his cost of living go up, etc., etc.?

The program seeks two major things:

1—Increased commodity prices. That is farm products, such as wheat, cotton, raw materials, like copper, in an effort to ease the debt burden and bring profit to the farmers.

2—Return the 13,000,000 idle to work.

AIM TO LEVEL PRICES

The abandonment of the gold standard, the appointment of an agriculture dictator, the farm credit relief program, the Federal Reserve credit easing operations through the purchase of government bonds and the wheat and cotton acreage control plans all aim at improving the commodity price level.

The industrial act, with its provision relaxing the anti-trust laws, shortening the working hours, spreading of employment and raising wages, and the public works program are all designed to reduce unemployment.

The railroad program, with its co-ordinator, fits more into the first classification, as it is intended to make the railroads of the country solvent, thereby making their debts-bonds, held by banks and insurance companies, good.

MEANS HIGHER PRICES

So first of all it means higher prices. This spells a higher cost of living—a jump in the family budget. Already the citizen is feeling the pinch of this at the grocery store and meat market. Clothing, furniture and dry goods merchants have been a little slower to mark up prices, but they will be forced to when they have to pay the manufacturer and wholesaler more on replenishing their already diminished stocks.

Rents, fuel and nearly everything else that goes to make up the family budget—even gasoline for the automobile—will be similarly effected.

This is where the industrial recovery act is supposed to play its part. As the cost of living rises, wages are supposed to be increased. Already some of the bigger corporations have increased wages. These increases, though, may be offset in a measure by shorter working hours and spreading of work.

For three years the smart thing has been to save, not spend and stay out of debt. Then prices were going down. A person "made money" by waiting. Now, the way to "make money" is to spend, go into debt and contract for future requirements at present day prices. Prices are going up.

As to chances of getting a job, the more optimistic figure 4,000,000 will be back to work this winter. Other estimates range down to 1,500,000 and 2,000,000.

RECOVERY CODE SPEEDED BY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, June 21.—American industry was virtually on a war footing today, the major industries of the country working 24 hours a day with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of national recovery, Johnson said:

"The principal industrial groups of the country know just what we are facing. They are working night and day, and several of these industries are almost ready to submit their codes.

"We are making a sort of tour de force for the next three months. We are going to try to get our earnings somewhere back where they belong, during that time."

PLAN OUTLINED

To do this, he proposes:

"To put several million men back to work this summer.

"To appeal to the manufacturers for an armistice in increased production capacity until we get this upward spiral started.

"To balance prices and wages."

The next three months will see the emergency phase of the job, in Johnson's opinion. His main idea at this time is to get men back on the job, at, he states emphatically, "a living wage." . . .

It is no secret that he is relying on the "big fellows" to set the pace for the smaller groups in maintaining wage levels and in meeting his requirements and those set forth in President Roosevelt's statement of his aims.

PROTECT WAGES

Back of that is the most powerful war-time weapon of all, public opinion. It is also an open secret that public opinion will be mobilized as it was in war, to insure nation-wide industrial cooperation.

Those that come in, Johnson promises in pungent terms, will be protected against a minority of "industrial slackers, or chiselers."

The government is going to do everything possible to prevent trade agreements made under the National Recovery act from limiting top wages, he said.

Foresters Moving In Special Trains

Twenty special trains from eastern military camps, carrying 5,000 members of reforestation army to western points, were scheduled to pass through Pittsburgh on the Pennsylvania Railroad last night, today and tomorrow. Twelve of the trains were from Camp Dix, N. J. The trains were made up of from 12 to 17 cars.

STATE BAR HEAD RAPS CONTROL OF INDUSTRY

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—Opening the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association today, William J. Fitzgerald, of Scranton, president, launched a direct attack on government regulation of industry.

Without mentioning President Roosevelt's industrial control plan he stated that "politics and business do not mix," and told the lawyers of Pennsylvania:

"We must always remember paternalism is the father of irresponsibility.

"Perhaps the outstanding example of regulation in our country has been the regulation of banks. We have had 49 kinds of regulation, one for each state and one for the national banks.

"But regulation has failed to give us a safe banking system. When the crisis came it was found that our only reliance was in the self-control of directors and officers. The better managed banks are open and the less ably managed banks are closed, and regulation did not serve our purpose."

Quoting Elihu Root, who said that "the future of our country depends primarily on the self-control of our people," Fitzgerald pointed his address toward "not only self-restraint but self-direction," and said that in recent years the discipline and self-control of our bar associations "has become so effective that there is a tendency for the public to ask them to interfere with things which are not their special concern."

Fitzgerald said:

"If our legal procedure is defective it is the responsibility of the Bar Associations to provide the remedy. If our banking laws are defective it is the responsibility of our bankers to present new laws."

Reports of officers and committees, a meeting of members of boards of examiners, a tea and reception in the afternoon, and an address this evening by Allen Wardwell, of New York, are on the program.

The meeting will close Friday with election of officers. Tomorrow there is a banquet for Clarence E. Martin, president of the American Bar Association.

Mayor of Phila. Fights U.S. Loan Plan

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(AP.)—Other cities may dip into the federal $3,300,000,000 public works fund, but Mayor J. Hampton Moore wants Philadelphia to disregard the "politico-financial experts and contractor-patriots" until the city can afford to resume its big municipal activities.

He counselled yesterday against a scramble for a share of the federal funds and flung into conflict with sponsors of a plan to borrow $100,000,000 for civic improvements.

City Controller S. Davis Wilson replied with a warning that if the loan is not obtained "200,000 persons will go to other cities to obtain work and the city will be filled with vacant houses."

HOSIERY MILLS FACE STRIKE

READING, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—A general strike tomorrow in all nonunion hosiery mills in the Philadelphia area is predicted by Emil Rieve, national president of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers.

Criticizing the manufacturers' plea for a cessation of agitation until the government's plans for industrial recovery can operate, Rieve said the statement issued by the manufacturers Monday was "an attempt to tie labor's hands until after the employers had obtained a labor code satisfactory to themselves and without regard to labor's welfare and interest."

NEW ENTENTE RUMORED AT PARLEY

LONDON, June 21.—(AP.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and other leaders of the World Economic Conference were understood this afternoon to be considering the radical step of suspending discussion of all monetary matters and dealing only with economic problems in order to prevent the possible wrecking of the conference over the currency stabilization imbroglio.

Gold standard countries were still talking about forcing adjournment of the conference pending stabilization of the American dollar and other major currencies.

There was another startling development today. The conference awoke to the fact that the recently disclosed scheme for the creation of a central European economy bloc, which would have far-reaching effect on international affairs, had taken on amazing vigor and was growing apace at the portals of the conference.

This bloc, which would comprise the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—and Austria and Hungary, is dependent upon a rapprochement between Italy and France.

It is reported that a meeting between Premiers Mussolini and Daladier is quite probable.

WHEAT PARLEY DEADLOCKED

LONDON, June 21.—(AP.)—The First concrete efforts to lay a groundwork for a general wheat production understanding ended in failure today as representatives of the four big wheat-producing nations temporarily abandoned negotiations.

Delegates of Canada, Argentina, Australia and the United States, reinforced by a flock of experts, met in an upper room of the Geological Museum and attempted to reach some agreement. But after an hour's discussion, they adjourned for two days.

This tacit admission of at least temporary failure to settle the world wheat crisis came on the heels of encouraging remarks by the wheat negotiations yesterday.

RUSSIA URGES TRADE TRUCE

LONDON, June 21.—(AP.)—Russian delegation submitted to the World Economic Conference today a draft convention embodying its plan for economic non-aggression under which all weapons of economic warfare would be scrapped.

The draft provides that "the contracting parties will abstain in their mutual relations from all forms of discrimination."

It took on special interest because of the existing embargo measures adopted by Britain against Russia and Russia against Britain as a result of the recent conviction of British engineers in Moscow on sabotage and espionage charges.

Burglar Suspect Wed in Handcuffs

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—Handcuffed in more ways than one was Louis Rodriguez, 28, a prisoner awaiting sentence for burglary who was married in City Chapel to Marguerita Velez, 28, of this city. Rodriguez was handcuffed to a prison keeper while the ceremony was being performed.

MOLEY SAILS FOR PARLEY

of contact between the administration here and the delegation."

Prof. Moley was asked:

"Is there any possibility of President Roosevelt's going to the Conference?"

He replied:

"No, not a chance."

MISSES BARUCH

The crush of persons about Prof. Moley was so great that Bernard M. Baruch was unable to talk with him. Baruch made a special trip from the capital for the purpose.

Herbert Bayard Swope, former executive editor of the New York World, sailed with Mr. Moley as "assistant to the errand boy." Herbert Bayard Swope, Jr., and Arthur F. Mullen, Jr., of Nebraska, completed the party.

Prior to sailing Prof. Moley telephoned part of his last-minute instructions from the President to the American delegation in London.

London Awaits Moley, Calls Him Criminologist

LONDON, June 21.—(INS.)—Despite the welter of popular criticism, diplomatic, government and world economic conference leaders looked to President Roosevelt today to save the conference from failure.

Special attention focussed on the awaited arrival here of American Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley, member of President Roosevelt's "brain trust," and the message he will bear from the chief executive of the United States.

Despite sneers in the British press, his arrival here is regarded in many quarters as marking the turning point of the conference. The moment he lands in London, Moley will find himself face to face with a huge European question mark.

In proof of this, and the significance many quarters attach to his coming, almost every European delegation scoffs at the contention of the Americans that Moley is merely President Roosevelt's messenger to them.

On all sides declarations are raised that the fate of the conference depends upon what Moley will have to say for the United States regarding tariffs, currency stabilization and general economic policy.

Meanwhile, London newspapers today continued shooting barbs at Moley. They made sarcastic cracks about the "brain trust" and the "criminologist and professional basketball player."

U. S. BANKERS FILE PROTEST

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—American bankers who have marketed German dollar bonds, of which about $1,000,000,000 are outstanding in this country, have cabled a protest to the Reichsbank against the partial moratorium declared on transfer payments.

The moratorium decree was issued June 8. The protest was directed against stoppage of certain interest payments July 1, under the decree.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(Universal.)—Creation of a corporation to protect the interests of American holders of foreign securities will be withheld until after the London Economic Conference is concluded, it is indicated.

President Roosevelt must issue a proclamation declaring public interest requires such a corporation before it can be set up, under the terms of the "blue sky" securities act passed by Congress.

The President is represented as feeling it would not be opportune to initiate such a move until it is determined what is to come out of the London conference.

HOUSING PLANS TO BE AIRED

Adequate housing conditions for 17,000 Pittsburgh families, will be discussed by Joseph P. Tufts, of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, at a meeting of social bodies in the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow.

Although the Legislature failed to pass a housing bill at its last session, improvements on living conditions may be provided on a large scale under terms of the national recovery act, it was said today by officials of civic organizations.

Twilight Musicale Arranged at Pitt

A twilight musicale will be given tonight by the University of Pittsburgh in the Cathedral of Learning for the active members of committees furnishing the nationality rooms in the building.

Miss Thrysa W. Amos, dean of women, will speak, followed by a trio from the string ensemble of the Tuesday Musical Club.

BRITISH TO GET DEBT OFFER

By KINGSBURY SMITH,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Great Britain will be offered the opportunity of heading the debt revision parade of non-defaulting nations which are seeking drastic reduction of the eleven billion dollars owed this nation, International News Service was informed today.

Britain comes to the head of the list as a result of Finland's declaration it was in no hurry to discuss a revision of the $19,000,000 it still owes this country.

Finland is the only one of the debtor nations which has met its obligations in full to this government and has never taken advantage of the postponement privileges contained in the debt funding agreement. In view of this, President Roosevelt instructed the State Department to offer Finland the opportunity of heading the debt revision parade.

When Acting Secretary of State Phillips informed L. Astrom, the Finnish minister, of the President's desire to honor Finland by permitting it to head the list, he was surprised to learn the little Baltic republic was in no great hurry to seek revision.

JUBILEE PARTY REVIVED ON NORTH SIDE

With clowns, a German band, "Copenhagen," street dancing and free chewing gum, the Old-Fashioned Jubilee is coming back to West Park, North Side, next Wednesday.

For years, an annual North Side festival marked the closing of the school year, the last of the community-get-together jubilees being held in 1908. The celebration is being revived by the North Side Community councils.

Twenty to 40,000 people—the majority of them North Side school children—will be beneficiaries of the free entertainment, which includes more than two hours of vaudeville acts, donated by North Side organizations, and music by five bands.

Children will be initiated into the mysteries of "Copenhagen," high point of the old-time festivals. The game has something to do with kissing, and is not hard to learn, according to Alpheus Emmel, general chairman.

A water-clown act on Lake Elizabeth will be a special attraction.

Ice cream, pop and all refreshments necessary to a jubilee will be sold at stands, managed by North Side churches. Those attending also will bring basket lunches.

Thirty prizes will be offered in sport events.

The party will start off at 1:30 p. m. with a parade of children from the four nearest schools. The Swift Mission Boys' Brigade will also parade.

The show will be over at 10:30 p. m.

GERMAN CHIEFS QUIT PARLEY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

LONDON, June 21.—Germany is in effect deserting the World Economic Conference.

Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, plans to leave London today. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, returned to Berlin by airplane yesterday.

Count Schwerin von Krosigk, Minister of Finance, is not expected to come back, and Minister of Economics Alfred Hugenbuerg has been urged by von Neurath over the telephone not to return to London on the ground that in the frigid anti-German atmosphere of the conference the German delegation can accomplish nothing. The Germans feel that no emphasis has been laid upon Germany's co-operation.

Von Neurath denied that Germany is withdrawing from the conference, but he made no attempt to conceal the fact that his country's delegation finds the London atmosphere uncongenial.

Question About Bad Boys Brings Varied Opinions

Should a boy who has gotten himself into one scrape after another finally be made to "take his medicine?"

Or should his mother make every sacrifice to "give him one more chance"—when he is threatened with prison?

Will it make him, or break him, if she gets him off, or if he finally has to stand the gaff?

That was the terrible question that confronted a distracted mother who came to this column for advice.

We put it up to The Gang, and we heard from mothers, and from wives.

Today, we're hearing from the boys themselves.

First, here's Joe. Joe paid for his Wild Times—and he's still paying, according to him.

"Don't let this boy go to the pen," he urges. "I went, and I wouldn't want to see any boy go there.

"It isn't what you go through there, although that is bad enough. It is what you learn while you're there, the associations you make, and the 'record' you come out with. The stigma of being an 'ex-con' that you have to live down.

"Even if you want to go straight—and plenty who come out don't—that isn't easy. People are always ready to believe the worst of you because you have a 'record.' I guess it's reasonable. They think that what you've done once you'll do again, so they're always on your trail.

"Supposing he did go wrong? Don't expect to save him by sending him to prison. I've been there, and seen a lot of them, and I know that the Penitentiary Route seldom works. They come out hardened, and knowing all kinds of ways of dishonesty that they never knew anything about when they went in."

A DIFFERENT OPINION

Which is, of course, plenty true. Youngsters all too often do walk into a school of crime when they walk into prison, and plenty of times they come out worse, far wiser in evil, than they went in.

But on the other hand, where's "getting away with murder" going to land them? Will saving them from consequences give them character?

Now here's Verne, who has something quite different to say about that—also from experience.

"I had parents who helped me out of scrapes, too," says Verne, "and I'd advise this mother to let her son take his medicine, even if it does mean being locked up for a while.

"That is what happened to me after my folks had helped me out of a lot of scrapes. Their help only made it easier for me to do the same thing over again. I was just careless and irresponsible, and thought 'Oh, well, the folks will get me out of it,' when something came up.

VALUABLE EXPERIENCE

"Well, finally it came to a showdown, and they let me take what was coming—which was the best thing that ever happened to me. It made a man of me. I woke up and did some serious thinking. Ever since, I have been as square and honest as I could, where before—well, it was just a great game, getting away with things.

"Of course this boy will be thrown with criminals, but if he is of the right stuff, it will be the most valuable experience of his life, because when he gets to know these fellows, and to know what rats they are, he will be disgusted with them and will prefer the other path, as I did.

"If he isn't the right stuff, getting away with all this will make a crook of him anyway, so I say 'take the chance, and let him pay for what he does. It can't be any worse for him than the way he is going now'."

There are two answers to a terrible question. What's yours?

Fay King Discusses Results of Success—And Those Who Benefit

WHY SHOULD HE RETIRE FROM BUSINESS? HE CAN ACHIEVE EVEN MORE THAN HE HAS!
DON'T BE SO SELFISH. WHAT WILL BECOME OF US IF YOU DIVORCE HIM?
IF I MARRY WELL, MY SISTERS WILL HAVE BETTER CHANCES
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When a man attains great success he carries along all those connected with him.

When a girl makes a brilliant marriage, naturally her family and friends advance with her.

Those who profit by these connections are often happier and more fortunate than those who made it all possible.

When the successful man begins to grow weary of his worries and cares, and would willingly retire, these others keep urging him on to achieve still more riches and power—which they may enjoy.

If the girl who has been married off for the advantage of her family finds herself unhappy, she may expect very little sympathy from them. They will humor her husband in all his faults, because "for the family's sake" the marriage must last.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of LOVE'S REAWAKENING

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Injured as Gangster Is Captured

For the nerve-racking minute or two that followed Dicky's injunction, "Don't let this beast get away!" I lay prone where I had fallen in my flight from Nick, the gangster, while the grim man hunt went on.

Then there came a triumphant cry of "Got him!" followed by broken, choking sounds of cursing from the cornered man. Immediately afterward I heard my name called roughly, terrifiedly.

"Madge!"

"Margaret!"

With a little qualm of anxiety for future complications, I realized that both Dicky and Hugh were calling thus anxiously, Dicky with the diminutive of my name which he has used ever since he first knew me, Hugh with the staider, more dignified full name.

"Dicky! Oh, Dicky!" I called. "I am right here!"

I scrambled to my feet and started to run in the direction of his voice, although Hugh's in the opposite direction, was nearer. But it was Hugh who reached me first, after I had again stumbled and fallen in the plowed ground, this time with my foot twisted under me and a sudden, sharp pain in my ankle which was responsible for an involuntary groan.

HELPED BY HUGH

"What is it?" he asked, his voice sharp with anxiety. "Are you hurt? That beast! He fired at you. Did he hit you?"

"No, no, I stumbled, and—I think—I've twisted my ankle. But I'm sure it will be all right."

I tried to struggle to a sitting posture, but sank down again, ashamed of the sharp cry that a knife-like trust of pain through my ankle forced from me.

Hugh gave a shocked ejaculation in a tone that was in itself a caress; then he stopped and lifted me quickly, but with infinite tenderness, clear of the ground, cradling me in his arms as if I were a frightened child.

"We must get you to a physician at once," he said, striding with me in the direction of the fence.

The pain in my ankle was excruciating, but it was dwarfed by the lively fear in my heart. Dicky was rushing toward the sound of my call to him. What would he think, what would he say, what would he do when he should encounter Hugh thus carrying me?

I dallied with the thought of asking Hugh to put me down again on the ground and go away, leaving Dicky to find me, but I realized that to do this would bring my husband's jealousy of this old and tried friend out into the open, and, what was worse, would make romantically significant a humane care which Hugh would have given any woman suffering as I was.

The decision was taken out of my hands in another half second, for Dicky appeared suddenly out of the darkness, and his anxious utterance of my name changed to snarling, angry exclamation.

"Madge! What the devil—" But in the same breath either the social training of a lifetime or genuine fear for me vanquished his jealous rage, and there was only solicitude in his voice as he changed his query.

JEALOUSY RETURNS

"What has happened, Hugh? Is she hurt? Did that devil—"

"No, no, Dicky!" I raised my head from Hugh's shoulder and stretched my hands to my husband, "I've only twisted my ankle, but rather badly, I'm afraid. I can't walk."

I was hoping that he would lift me from Hugh's arms into his own, but with his fear of real hurt to me relieved, his rancor returned, though the only evidence of it was an accenting of his usual courteous manner, with an infusion of formality ludicrously incongruous, and more betraying of his jealousy than rageful speech would have been.

"Oh! I'm sorry! But you're in good hands. How fortunate that Hugh should have reached you so soon! Better get her to a physician as soon as possible, don't you think?"

"I'm taking her to the car now," Hugh said, and from his tone no one could have guessed that he either recognized Dicky's thinly disguised anger or was affected by it. But the clasp of his arms tightened around me, I guessed with involuntary reaction to Dicky's crudity, and remained thus taut while we waited for my husband's next comment.

Hints for the Household

Wire brushes are useful in a variety of ways. The unpleasant odor of burning fat which has spattered the grill of the gas stove when frying can be avoided by brushing the grill with a wire brush before using. Again, wire brushes are much more effectual than sandpaper in removing paint, especially from crevices.

Soap must be well rinsed out of blankets. Three waters are not too many. Shake blankets well before hanging out to dry; turn and shake twice while drying.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

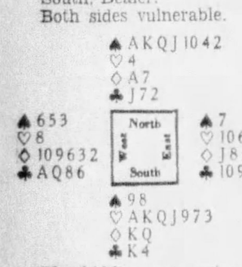
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing for the Highest Stake

The appeal of Contract Bridge is world-wide, and it might almost be said that Bridge players at least have attained that desired goal of many persons who are of international mind—an international and exchangeable language.

Mr. F. Urban, of Brunn, Czechoslovakia, has written entertainingly on Bridge for American publications. In a recent letter he tells the story of how he was made the victim of of a Grand Slam complex by two fellow-citizens of Brunn on the hand below:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding was not exactly conventional. South opened with a bid of three hearts, and North bid seven spades. Mr. Urban remarks that at this point "all passed in awe," and that the game was not a long-prolonged agony.

East led a heart, and all was over but the post-mortem. Obviously, a club lead would defeat the contract 2 tricks. East based his Opening lead upon the hope that his partner might be void of the suit and thus able to defeat the Grand Slam by a ruff. Actually this was bad reasoning, as, were this the case, West would have doubled, indicating a desire for that lead. Of course, with the heart lead excluded, East has a pure guess between diamonds and clubs, the club possibly having a slight preference, but so slight that it is hardly discernible. The holder of the North hand was Mr. Carl Machanek, who explained his bidding thus:

"I have a bad attack of the Grand Slam complex. To bid and make a vulnerable Grand Slam tremendously increases my enjoyment of the game. It is worth much more to me than the 2250 points I actually score. My partner's bidding led me to expect a lay-down, since my losers could be discarded on the solid hearts in my partner's hand. I expected him to hold the Ace of clubs and was greatly disappointed to find the King-Queen of diamonds instead. He was stronger in honor-tricks than I had the right to anticipate, but his cards did not fit my hand as well as the Ace of clubs would have done.

"While the Ace of clubs in his hand was not a certainty, it was a strong probability. However, with this card only a strong probability, I believed the success of my bid depended on East's lead and I could be beaten in two cases only. The first was if East had the Ace of clubs. Assuming it is certain East will lead the Ace if he holds it, the probability of my losing is one to three. Secondly, there is the chance that the Ace of clubs is with West, but that East will open a club. Since East has a choice of three suits, this probability is one to nine. Thus the total probability of my contract being beaten is four to nine, which means that I should win in five out of nine cases. I was therefore entitled to bid the Grand Slam."

While I do not agree with all of Mr. Machanek's argument, it is at least interesting. It is further interesting that all of the argument as to probabilities applies to a contract of six spades as well as to the Grand Slam. In other words, there is just as good a chance with these cards of making a Grand Slam as a Small Slam, provided North plays the hand at spades.

Mr. Urban, in telling the story, points the moral that if you decide to take a plunge, you should do it as Mr. Machanek did, and play for the highest stake.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect Is Real Source of Danger in Mastoiditis

Not long ago I happened to overhear the conversation of two men. One of them was deeply concerned about his son who had been operated upon for mastoiditis. His friend remarked that "a mastoid operation is always successful, and even though the brain is exposed, the wound will close and heal." This was welcome news to the worried father, because he had heard many less reassuring stories regarding the mastoid operation.

Dr. Copeland

Mastoid disease or "mastoiditis," as it is commonly called, is a dreaded affliction. But if parents better understood the ailment I am confident that a great deal of apprehension and unnecessary worry would be voided. Unfortunately, there is much confusion concerning it.

The mastoid forms the bony prominence you can feel behind the ear. Within its firm outer covering there are cavities or honeycomb-like cells. These are separated from the brain by a very thin layer of bone. When mastoiditis is neglected, there is always danger of the infection traveling to the brain.

The inflammation in mastoiditis is caused by germs which come from the nose or throat. As a matter of fact, it is a frequent complication of influenza or pneumonia and may follow a severe cold. Infected adenoids or tonsils may be complicated by mastoid involvement.

The sufferer first complains of earache. This may be followed by a profuse discharge of pus from the affected ear, with relief of the earache. But, unfortunately, if the discharge from the ear suddenly stops, the pain returns. Pretty soon the pain is localized behind the ear. Sometimes there is swelling in that region. The victim is restless, uneasy, and runs a high fever.

As a rule, the disease is quickly recognized in adults who can accurately locate and describe the pain. But it is not so easy in children. They describe their symptoms so vaguely that it is difficult to decide at once just where the trouble is.

The diagnosis of mastoid disease can sometimes be confirmed by means of the X-ray. This should always be resorted to when the diagnosis is difficult to make and the symptoms are vague and misleading.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married, and I find myself at a loss to know how to proceed with the announcements and wedding arrangements.

I am divorced, but my former husband visits our children and corresponds regularly with them. Our oldest daughter is to be married to a minister's son and would like to have a small wedding. She wishes the father of her fiance to perform the ceremony, but would like to have it done in our church, which is a different denomination.

If you can suggest how this can be done, we will both appreciate it deeply. MOTHER.

This plan of your daughter's is an excellent one, and one that is very often carried out. The thing to keep in mind is to make thoroughly definite and agreeable arrangements with both ministers. These arrangements are made by you and your daughter. First go to see your own minister and ask him if having the fiance's father perform part of the ceremony is agreeable to him. I am sure that it will be. Then talk this over with the father of your daughter's fiance.

Usually, under these carcumstances, it is the gracious plan to arrange to have part of the ceremony performed by one of the ministers, and part by the other. After you and your daughter have talked with each minister alone, they will arrange to meet together and decide the details of the ceremony.

"I am so happy— the last pimple is gone"

—because pimples tend to thrive when normal resistance is lacking, your first thought should be to build up your blood structure . . . the way to do this is by increasing the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content . . . this will permit a greater oxygen intake—from the lungs—into the blood and tissues—increasing the skin . . . nourishment will be better converted into energy and tissue repair . . . body cells, which fight against micro-organisms (pimple germs) will be strengthened.

Then why not try S.S.S.—the proven tonic for decades? Proved effective by extensive scientific research and by millions of happy users. You, too, may have a clear skin. Get S.S.S. at any drug store. The big 20 oz. size is more economical and is good for a two weeks' treatment.

BIG SANITARIUM PLANNED

Frankfort Springs, famous Beaver County spa of other days, may stage a comeback.

Herman Stratman, of the North Side, chairman of a committee now in charge of almost 600 acres surrounding the old watering place, today made known plans to construct a $5,000,000 sanitarium on the site.

According to Stratman, a charter for operation of "Langfittburst" will soon be applied for in the Beaver County courts. The purpose, he said, will be to provide a home chiefly for convalescents of moderate means.

The land originally was donated by Dr. W. J. Langfitt, of St. John's Hospital, to the Sisters of Divine Providence for a school. They built, instead, on the Three Degree road and turned the Frankfort Springs property back to the committee that was to have had charge of building.

Ruth Etting In Cantor Movie

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—Another Broadway bright light will shine in Hollywood. Samuel Goldwyn has just signed Ruth Etting, popular songstress of the White Way, to come out here and play opposite Eddie Cantor in "Roman Scandals."

In her first full-length talkie assignment, Miss Etting will portray a captive princess, but will sing torch songs just the same. The leading woman part is being re-written to fit her personality, and Al Dubin and Harry Warren, tunesmiths, are hard at work on some numbers for her.

Miss Etting

Providing the Ziegfeldian Mr. Goldwyn gets his showgirls lined up, and William Anthony McGuire is able to put the script into shape, the new Cantor offering should get into production early in July.

It's to be a musical, like Eddie's other pictures, but will have no dancing lines of girls. Each cutie will have a bit and will hold the screen for the time she appears on it. There also are to be none of those overhead and angle shots of the dance numbers. What does that leave? Well, Busby Berkeley is directing the dances, and he says "plenty."

* * *

It could happen only in Hollywood.

The other day a certain studio head got into an argument with a subordinate and ended up by firing him.

An assistant with more courage than most objected to the step. He said that the discharged fellow did the work of three men, and that the studio literally would have to hire them if the edict held good. He argued so long and loud that the boss finally threw up his hands.

"All right!" he exclaimed. But I shan't speak to him for 90 days!"

* * *

Though Eleanor Holm has appeared in several Warner talkies, she did it under another name. The reason now comes out. Warner's agreed to jump the salary $500 a week as soon as they billed her as Eleanor Holm. For experience, she did one of the marathon dances in "Hard to Handle," and a cigar counter girl in another picture. Within the last few weeks, that clause in her contract has been compromised, so she may get a good part at last. In fact, they've tested her for a role in "Wild Boys of the Road."

Miss Holm

* * *

If Kay Francis holds out long enough against doing the opera singer in "Red Meat," Ann Dvorak may get the part. It will be her first since making peace with Warners . . . Nice gesture of Mae Clarke's to invite her twin nieces out here for a graduation present. They're Mildred and Harriett Blackson and they live in Philadelphia . . . Emmett Flynn's daughter, who has been very ill of pneumonia, is better now.

* * *

Hard to beat this for a wedding present. John Wayne has just signed a contract to do eight western pictures next year for Lone Star Productions. He will begin the first soon after returning from his honeymoon. Cecilia Parker will appear opposite him in several of the series.

Polly Rowles, who was prominent in "Over the Coals" in the Pitt a few weeks ago, will be seen in a principal role in "Springtime For Henry" when that Benn W. Levy comedy is presented by the Summer Playhouse, Shadyside Academy, Fox Chapel, opening for a week next Monday.

Jean Parker, 17-year-old heroine of "Shall We Tell Our Children?" has been engaged for the ingenue role in "Lady for a Day." This is adapted from "Madame La Gimp," Damon Runyon's Cosmopolitan Magazine story, and it portrays the drama of a lovable old apple-woman who is patronized by both wealthy and underworld characters and becomes involved in a situation which concerns both factions. Mr. Roosevelt Filmed on Jaunt

THE GLOBE TROTTER

President Roosevelt, happy as a boy, is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, starting on his first vacation since entering the White House. Before leaving, the President pauses long enough to say a brief word of farewell. The Globe Trotter describes his trip.

The Columbia River is on a rampage. Hundreds of homes around Kelso, Wash., are surrounded by water to the roofs. Farmers make frantic efforts to save their cattle on improvised barges.

"The war debts must be paid!" declare Senator Robinson, of Indiana; Senator Reynolds, of North Carolina, and Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, in stirring statements through Hearst Metrotone News.

Acting as a queen for a day, Princess Elizabeth, the tiny daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, sees a brilliant band and military exhibition at Aldershot, England, especially staged for her.

Amos and Andy, of radio fame, christen the great Sky Ride at the Chicago World's Fair. After the ceremonies, Hearst Metrotone takes you for a thrilling trip over "A Century of Progress."

Savoldi and Browning, in a so-called wrestling bout, give New York fans a howling treat.

Youngsters of from 5 to 12 years of age put on a startling exhibition of tumbling in San Antonio, Tex.

College Boys Are Fifth In Chorus Vote

A poll of 26 chorus girls just made on the Paramount studio lot revealed that the majority prefer motion picture executives as husbands. The kind old millionaires come second and businessmen third. Motion picture directors ranked fourth, while college boys came in for fifth place. None of the girls, all of whom were working in B. P. Schulberg's production, "Her Bodyguard," would care to marry an actor or an artist.

Best-Dressed Actor An Extra

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—(AP.)—Jay Eaton, who has been called "Hollywood's best dressed extra man," pays more attention to his wardrobe than do many stars.

It's because keeping a large and up-to-date assortment of clothes makes the bread-winning easier, he says. "Wardrobe to an extra," he puts it, "is like tools to a carpenter. It all means the same thing—bread and butter."

Eaton, in pictures 16 years, gives much credit to his wardrobe for the fact that he seldom works less than five or six days a week. The ordinary extra is glad to get $7.50, or even $5 a day, but Eaton, as a well-dressed extra, never draws less than $10. Sometimes it is $12.50 or $15, and when occasionally he gets a bit or a part, he takes in from $15 to $50 a day.

In his clothes closet are 30 pairs of shoes, about 40 suits, some 25 hats, eight topcoats, 15 pairs of spats in assorted colors for various occasions, and shirts and ties in abundance.

He believes in quality as well as quantity.

"I could get along all right," he says, "if I never bought any more clothes the rest of my life. I buy good clothes. I have my suits made by one of the finest tailors in Hollywood.

"I never keep a suit more than two years. Then I either sell them cheap to some of the extra boys who can't afford a tailored suit, or else I give them away. And I keep adding all the time."

The extra who wants to get the jobs, he believes, must have clothes that are a little extreme—"above the ordinary." He must keep a jump ahead of the styles.

All in a Day By MARK HELLINGER

"Mammy o' Mine"

IN A CAFE the other night, I had the opportunity of observing Milton Berle, the sensational young comedian, and his mother. Berle is the gentleman who, until this year, was panned by other comics and kidded unmercifully by columnists for stealing most of his material.

The young man, possesor of a great deal of natural talent and being far wiser than many of his critics, did a most unusual thing. Instead of resenting the cracks in typical ham fashion, he went out of his way to publicize the fact that he was known as a gag thief. He kidded himself on the stage and he deliberately gave columnists gags in which he took the raps.

Meanwhile, he was becoming better and better known. Column readers visited theaters in which Berle played in order to see just how bad this youth was. Much to their surprise, they found an expert comic who never failed to convulse his audience. His salary shot up in amazing fashion, and today he is one of the very few headline comedians who is never without work. His possibilities look to me to be limitless.

His mother is one of his greatest assets. Wherever Milton goes, mamma is sure to be.

As I say, I sat in a cafe the other night watching Milton and his mother. And suddenly, as I watched, I was reminded of the story of—let's say—Larry Malloy, who passed from the vaudeville game some years ago. It's a wonder to me that nobody has printed it before . . .

Larry Malloy was one of the first vaudeville performers to cash in on the mother angle. That he was an expert business man there wasn't a shadow of a doubt. While the song writers of the country were "Just Breaking the News to Mother," Larry was capitalizing on that sweet person in an entirely different way.

Wherever his act appeared the reviews told the story.

"Another act at the Colonial Theater this week," they would read, "is Larry Malloy with his songs, dances and funny sayings. If his devotion to his mother counts for anything, Malloy should go far. The manner in which his mother roots him home at every performance is almost worth the price of admission alone."

Some of the interviews he gave out must stand as classics of their kind. As for example:

"Girls? No, I'm not interested in them. I haven't the time, and, what's more, my mother is the only girl I will ever love. I can't find anyone who could ever be half so sweet as she, so what's the use of looking?"

Pretty? You'd be surprised how many papers used it throughout the land . . .

What did mother actually do? Plenty. Any time a gag writer presented what he claimed were new jokes, mamma was the first to pass on them. At the first performance the gags were tried, you can be certain that Mrs. Malloy was the first to laugh.

When Larry wired his agent that he had stopped the show in Washington, you can believe that his mother was really the one who had stopped the show. At the end of every performance, she was the first—and the last—to applaud.

And so the time rolled along, until the stage world first became "stooge conscious." Many of the better comedians began to use stooges; eccentric men, mainly, upon whom the comics could depend for additional laughs. But Larry Malloy would have none of them.

"Don't be silly," he stated. "It's all right for the other comedians to use stooges. Maybe they need them. I don't. If I can't get by alone, it's time for me to quit the racket. Larry Malloy goes on alone."

And his mother agreed with him . . .

After plenty of years in the vaudeville field, Larry finally graduated to musical comedy. When he signed his contract, there was a stipulation that had to be inserted before he would agree to terms. At every performance, the same seat in the seventh row had to be kept for his mother.

And the situation worked just as well in the new field as it had in the old. After each gag that he told, his mother's contagious laugh would lead all the rest. Just before each exit it was she who would time her applause.

He died . . .

When a short time after Larry's death, his will was read, it was found that he had remained true to character. He left everything he owned to his mother.

The only representative of the press who was sufficiently interested to cover the case was a young man who wrote at space rates for a theatrical publication. He dropped into the lawyer's office for the reading of the will because he thought he might be able to pick up a few cents with a paragraph or two.

They wouldn't permit him to enter the main office, so he stood outside and cooled his heels. Some 30 minutes went by when a little, old lady opened the door and walked out. The reporter raised his hat.

"Pardon me, madame," he asserted, "but I understand that Larry left everything to Mrs. Malloy. I'm very anxious to speak to her. Can you tell me if she'll be out soon?

"You're talking to her," replied the woman. "I am Mrs. Malloy, Larry's mother."

The reporter's eyes opened wide.

"But," he muttered, "I don't understand. If you are Mrs. Malloy, who is the other woman whom the world knew as his mother?"

The woman shrugged her shoulders.

"Her?" she said. "Didn't you know who she was? I thought everybody did. She was Terry's stooge!"

Remember the irrepressible Bridgie in "When Ladies Meet?" Well, she's in town for the week—visiting and resting. "Bridgie" is Spring Byington, and she's the house guest of one of our smart set playwrights—Mrs. Newton Chapin, of Sewickley.

Mrs. Chapin will give a luncheon in her home for her distinguished guest Friday. Because the actress is resting, there won't be a round of entertainments for her, Mrs. Chapin tells me.

To Fete Guests

Genevieve Bindley, daughter of the Albion Bindleys, of Shady avenue, home from Radcliffe, has as her house guests two classmates — Isabel Bland, of St. Louis, and Solita Arbib, of New York.

The Bindleys will give a dinner for their guests Saturday night in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, and an informal supper Sunday night in their home.

Some more about the summer night, out-of-doors concerts on the Hotel Schenley lawn, beginning Tuesday night — Junior Leaguers will be aides.

Louise Totten is chairman of aides, including Betty McKay, Harriet Fickes, Jane Sloan and Joan Diehl. Joan is visiting in Pittsburgh — she lives in San Francisco now, you know.

Entertain For Bride

I have some more entertainments for Madelaine Alexander, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, who'll become Mrs. Alexander Gordon III, Saturday afternoon, to tell you about.

Rosamond Fitch will give a luncheon Friday for the bridal party, and the same day Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., will give a luncheon in her home for the Gordon Gordons, parents of the bridegroom-elect.

Rebecca Doyle is giving a luncheon today in her home, and tomorrow Madelaine herself will give a luncheon in the Alexanders' Sewickley Heights home for her attendants.

NATURAL LINEN IS COMBINED EFFECTIVELY WITH NEW SHEERS

LIFE IN the summer is almost impossible without a double-duty dark-and-light sheer suit. Linen, combined with this cool fabric, is particularly high fashion now. For days in town you'll find this year's version of it never goes limp, as some materials used to do.

* * *

NATURAL, OR string, is a color the sun shines on this summer. It is contrasted just as we used to use white, but somehow the effect is infinitely smarter and newer. String also offers a wide range of possibilities. For instance, it can be used in large areas, such as a coat over dark colors. One suit above, to the right, has a dark sheer dress with gay plaid taffeta bow and belt showing through the casual slip-on coat. You may find it difficult to recognize the fabric of the coat—but it really is linen in a novelty tweed weave. Just one of the amazing things designers have done with the surface of this material! The jacket is loose and carefree—there are amusing clam-shell epaulets.

* * *

THE OTHER suit is much more tailored. The shoulders of the coat are faintly Gibson-girl, wide, stiff and tucked. Remove the jacket and you emerge soft and feminine, as the figure in front proves. The dress has tiny cap sleeves, a soft corsage of string-colored linen flowers that contrast the dark sheer, and a neckline that dips quite low in back.

* * *

TO GO AWAY in, to commute in later, and to stay cool in all summer, either of these dresses, which were sketched on a penthouse roof may be heartily recommended. You can pop the light linen coats into the tub, or not, as you choose. They do launder beautifully.

SCHOOLS VOTE MILK SUPPLY

The Board of Public Education yesterday voted to supply undernourished children with milk and other food during the summer school vacation. It authorized employing Dr. A. M. Kerr, the board's medical supervisor, at half time to supervise distribution of the food.

About 9,000 children are being supplied milk by the board, Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, said, adding that feeding them will continue.

Announcement of the appointment of Alexander P. Reed, as chairman of the finance and administration committee, to succeed N. R. Criss, recently named solicitor for the board, was announced by President Marcus Aaron.

The position of general supervisor of school lunchrooms was created, and Miss Evelyn Quigley named at a salary of $2,500. Roy E. Smoot was elected assistant superintendent of supplies at $4,000 a year, and Robert L. McKee was named assistant inspector of supplies at $1,620 a year.

In a letter to Council the board opposed the proposed annexation of part of Mifflin Township to the city, citing the heavy expense of rebuilding the township schools.

CITY ECONOMY PLAN PERILED

Fourteen laborers in city pumping stations may soon have nicer titles and double pay if Council passes an ordinance approved yesterday by its committee on finance.

The change would cut by more than half the savings instituted when Council slashed 21 second engineers from the payroll in its economy flurry last winter.

The ordinance calls for creating three positions of pumpmen in Brilliant, Mission street, Herron Hill and Howard street pumping stations, and reducing the number of laborers by three in each place. Two relief pumpmen would be retained in the Bureau of Water.

Pay for the laborers is $3 a day; for pumpmen it would be $6 a day; for second engineers it was approximately $7.50 and $8.

Saint-Gaudens Tells of Art Tour on Air

Reviewing his recent tour of European art centers, Homer Saint-Gaudens, head of the Carnegie Institute Department of Fine Arts, speaks over NBC-WCAE from the WEAF studios, New York, today at 5:15.

Saint-Gaudens arrived in New York yesterday following a two and a half months' continental trip, extending invitations to European artists to participate in the thirty-first International Exhibit, which opens here October 19.

Wagner Program

An all-Wagner program by Howard Barlow's symphony orchestra tops tonight's fare for music lovers, featuring the Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan und Isolde," the Overture to "Rienzi" and the Prelude to Act III of "Die Meistersinger" . . . WJAS at 10:45.

Ravel's rippling "Jeux d'Eau," and selections from the works of Liszt, Brahms, Rubinstein and Chopin mark Mischa Levitzki's weekly WCAE recital at 10:30.

Another of Frank Black's string symphonic presentations, this time spotting Franz Ries' Suite No. 3, is KDKA's 7:30 bill.

On the same station at 6:30, Edith Cantor Lazier, soprano, and Dr. J. Curtis McBurney, tenor, are co-starred in classic selections.

Several new entertainment groups, including a harmonica ensemble, bow on WCAE at 10 as Corn Cob Pipe Club variety-ists . . .

And on the same station at 8, Fannie Brice's "Mrs. Cohen" skit centers about adventures down on the farm with Abe and the family.

Countess Olga Albani shares times with Donald Novis on the tenor's weekly WCAE broadcast at 8:30.

Mock Marriage

Is a person married against his will legally married? The question, coming from an 18-year-old girl who took part in a "mock wedding" at a party and later learned that the ceremony had been real, is answered by the Voice of Experience via WJAS at 8 p. m.

Tomorrow—on WCAE at 3:30 brings a talk by Elswyth Thane, author of "Tudor Wench," a biography of Queen Elizabeth. Miss Thane, who in private life is Mrs. William Beebe, will describe some of the interesting sources from which she developed material for her latest work.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

With summer here, and vacation days along with it, many a young globe trotter feels the need of a regular pal for his outdoor activities.

Others in the listening family, expecting to enjoy vacations, are confronted with the problem of disposing of their pets.

These very same pets would be the answer to happiness for many of the youngsters.

A good home and pleasing companionship is offered your pet by Betty C. Fowler of 419 Walnut street, Latrobe, and the little son of Mrs. Harriet Peterson, 1627 Virginia avenue, Monaca.

Leo McGrail is the apple of his mother's eye. She is more than proud of his unbroken school record as a pupil of the St. Canice School, Knoxville.

Raymond Edward Jamison, 5703 Forbes street, graduates from grade school to Taylor Allderdice High School, receiving the certificate for perfect attendance.

Anna Ruehling, 324 Kramer way, Mt. Washington, graduates from South Hills High School with a perfect 11 year record.

I'd like to be present at a verbal clash between rival members of the new police mushball teams, each knowing all the arguments and their answers, too.

They say the detectives are still smarting under the defeat the Brookline boys handed them in a practice game.

The boys swiped the bases under the noses of the helpless sleuths.

Mrs. Brennan, of Rookland street, says the police look "too ducky" for words in their new blue and gold uniforms.

When it comes to collecting, Leroy Krause, of Braddock avenue, has a remarkable assortment of autographs, signatures of President Roosevelt and other men high in public life, as well as educators, sporting figures and hundreds whose names make news.

South Hills Pupils In Junior Patrol Program

With Junior, Snuggins and Spike discussing further the details of their proposed cruise down the Ohio, the weekly Junior Patrol program goes on the air at 4:45 today over WCAE.

A quartet from South High School comprises the ensemble unit, and Uncle Ted once more pinch-hits for Cartoonist Quin Hall, Patrol "Chief."

Four times daily the latest bulletins are flashed to WCAE and WJAS listeners by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News. He goes on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

RADIO FLIRTS WITH MUSICAL COMEDY WRITERS

By AIRCASTER

There is a unanimity of opinion among the highly paid scribblers who produce musical comedy continuities for the stage, that radio must eventually come to them—at their price—for material, probably during the coming season.

They are led to believe this by the slump in the written material provided by the old radio studio and agency stand-bys, the disheartening new low struck by those who write gags and create funny situations for the microphone comics.

It does seem that the inventiveness of the present tribe has been exhausted.

Such gents as George Kaufman, Morris Riskind and Tony Maguire come high. They receive royalties for months for one piece of writing, which they require weeks to prepare.

If they came to radio, they would be required to write hastily and under pressure, and at present rates, would receive flat fees of only a few hundred bucks. That's why they have been so aloof.

The network head men have another opinion. While they do not belittle the genius of lads who can produce "Once in a Lifetime," "Of Thee I Sing," etc., they fear that the authors couldn't ring the bell indefinitely at any price, and that they couldn't dash off the right kind of pieces at radio speed.

Nevertheless, the situation is such that they may be given a trial.

* * *

There is in New York a charitable institution for indigents—and at intervals during the year the officials send letters to musicians.

They inquire if the musickers have lying around any old musical instruments for which the institution would gladly send a wagon.

The inmates of the home like to amuse themselves with flutes, ukuleles and saxophones and such.

Dick Leibert received one of the letters Saturday and called the institution:

"You may have the instrument I play if you can transfer it to the home."

"Fine. What do you play?"

"The Radio City organ."

Dick laughed and then sent half a dozen harmonicas.

FILM COMEDIAN ASKS DIVORCE

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—(AP.)—Less than a month ago Stan Laurel, of the movie comedy team Laurel and Hardy, was sued for divorce on grounds of mental cruelty by his wife, Lois. Yesterday Oliver Hardy, moon-faced and ponderous, filed suit against his wife, Myrtle, on the same grounds.

In asking the divorce Hardy charged that Mrs. Hardy would leave home for long periods of time, and when he found her "she was in an exhausted and bedraggled condition, due to intoxicating liquors."

The suit also charged that during "the defendant's debauches," Mrs. Hardy insisted upon driving one of the film comedian's automobiles, causing him "great mental stress." He claimed she spent large sums of their community property on liquor and ran him into debt.

In 1929 Mrs. Hardy sued the comedian for divorce, charging he "had been in too close proximity to persons using powder and other cosmetics." The suit later was dismissed.

BROKER TAKES DEATH LEAP

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Universal.)—For five minutes last night George L. Batchelder, 38, wealthy investment bond broker, clung to the ledge outside his fortieth floor office in the Cities Service Building, in the financial district, while two building employes pleaded with him not to jump.

Then, after shouting to them that nothing would persuade him to change his mind, he let go his hold. His body struck a ledge on the seventeenth floor and catapulted down to an extension of the twelfth.

He was identified by a brother, Charles F. Batchelder, and his physician, Dr. Locke L. MacKenzie, both of whom said the dead man had been under treatment following a nervous breakdown.

EUGENE SIMONS DIES IN HOME

Eugene S. Simons, president of the Pittsburgh Reflector Company, died early today in his home, 513 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, after a prolonged illness.

A resident of Pittsburgh since 1902, Mr. Simons built up the Pittsburgh Reflector Company from a small shop to a nationally known concern.

Born in Benton Harbor, Mich., he was in the banking and real estate business before becoming associated with the reflector company.

IRISH DAY PICNIC SATURDAY

Mayor John S. Herron, members of City Council and numerous jurists and city officials will take part.

Inter-Collegiate Dance Next Week

Arrangements for the midsummer Inter-Collegiate Ball, which will be held next Wednesday at the Pines, are being completed by the committee headed by J. Walker Larimer, president of the Masquers Club, which is sponsoring the affair.

The committee includes John McMahan, Harry Miller, James Mills, Arthur Wolf, Homer Bebb, Stephen Froner, Lee Rodgers and Robert Hewett.

Ex-Banker Denies Falsifying Records

CLEVELAND, June 21.—(P.)—Adrian G. Newcomb, former director in the Standard Trust Bank which closed two years ago, today pleaded not guilty to a charge of making false entries in the bank's records.

Newcomb, a prominent Cleveland attorney and former Common Pleas judge, provided bond of $2,500.

JUVENILE WARD CHANGES SEEN AFTER HEARINGS

POLITICS

Democrats Maneuver to Avoid Primary Fight

By MARK SHIELDS

Democrats are as busy as some Republicans in hunting a mayoralty candidate behind whom there can be unity of action.

Mr. Shields

But there is this difference: All factions of Democrats are drawn into conference in an effort to avoid a scarring primary fight, that they may present a united and harmonious front in November.

With the Republicans there is no such chance for unity. The city administration has its candidate in Mayor John S. Herron. The search for a standard bearer is confined to the anti-Herron political and business elements; some independents, some former organization men who have broken away because of differences with Senator James J. Coyne, the "big man" in Herron's corner.

So far, the Democrats have made little headway. Heretofore, the differences within the party have been quite as severe as the differences between the party and the Republicans. The wing of County Chairman David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey has been at constant warfare with Maj. E. Lowry Humes, John Henry, Malcolm McDonald and Charles Alvin Jones.

* * *

Benedum Apparently Remains Neutral

Comparatively neutral is M. L. Benedum, wealthy oil man, though he stood with Lawrence and Guffey at Chicago for President Roosevelt when a pre-convention survey indicated that John W. Davis, of West Virginia, the first choice of Mr. Benedum, could not reach the nomination goal.

Mr. Benedum says his only interest is in the "right type" of candidate, one behind whom not only all Democrats, but Independent Republicans, will rally next November.

Mr. Benedum, Humes, Lawrence and Guffey sat at luncheon together Monday, which gave rise to the report there had been a conference on possible Democratic candidates. Other men were at the table. Mr. Lawrence says the meeting was not to be construed as a Democratic political conference.

Mr. Benedum says the gathering was not premeditated, each of the three gentlemen lunching with him frequently. The name of no man was mentioned, according to Mr. Benedum.

But it would be an odd circumstance if this quartet could meet without some thought of politics being in the atmosphere. The irreconcilable would seem to be Maj. Humes, but he has been frequently in touch with Mr. Benedum.

Pinchot's Appointments Strengthen East

It will be recalled in the primary for delegates to the national convention last year, Guffey and Lawrence had a Roosevelt slate, there was a Smith slate, and Maj. Humes ran independent of both. Before there can be any approach to real harmony there will have to be other persons taken into conferences, for there is a substantial group which was not represented at the luncheon table.

Perhaps the Democrats will reach a compromise, but if they do it will be a remarkable tribute to the conciliatory powers of Mr. Benedum.

At last, Gov. Pinchot has made appointments to two judicial vacancies in Philadelphia, one of which had existed for more than a year. In his selections, he tried to drive a wedge into the Vare strength, hoping to assist the recalcitrants represented by former Mayor Harry Mackey and Controller S. Davis Wilson.

These groups recently met defeat in ward fights, Vare winning every one, but Pinchot has not abandoned hope of stimulating them, and also is being advised by some of his associates to seek some assistance from John McGarvey, a contractor.

Strife will be to the advantage of the Governor, and each wedge he can drive into Philadelphia will be an asset, in view of the pugnacious attitude the Vare crowd is adopting toward the state organization.

Recently there have been some dismissals of Vare people—and some demotions—by Auditor General Frank Baldwin. State Chairman Edward Martin or his aides are blamed by the eastern leaders.

* * *

Fletcher's Name Used In Vare Threat

It is significant that on the heels of these dismissals comes a story from Philadelphia that Vare may support Henry P. Fletcher, of Greencastle, for Governor. It is in the nature of notice served on Gen. Martin, ambitious to be Governor, that Mr. Vare is displeased, and has through his enormous Philadelphia vote the power of reprisal.

Perhaps no more than that is back of the Fletcher story. The former ambassador is something of a perennial. Whenever time comes to choose a Governor or United States Senator his name bobs up, with the explanation that he has the friendship of Gen. W. W. Atterbury.

But there are men extremely close to Gen. Atterbury who at the moment prefer Attorney General William A. Schnader, and who do not care for Fletcher. Furthermore, the Greencastle man is not well known in the state, and the suavity of diplomacy is not a good training school for the rough and tumble of Keystone politics.

Gen. Martin's program to placate Mr. Vare with the national committeeship has not clicked. It is an empty honor. A Republican national committeeman, with a Democratic national administration having nearly four years to run, is not even important enough to be placed on a minor preferred list.

CONSIDER COX AID REQUEST

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of welfare, and Controller James P. Kerr must decide in the next week or so whether they think the city should pay $60,343 to make up a deficit incurred by the Rev. Father James R. Cox's relief organization.

The task was wished upon them yesterday by the Finance Committee of Council.

Father Cox came out emphatically for Herron for mayor a few hours after asking Herron to underwrite the relief organization deficit.

Million Today Only Pin Money On Road Back

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We had to discard one of our recovery plans this week because it called for less than a billion.

We cannot think in small figures any more. After reading the budgetary arithmetic we stepped into a lunch wagon and ordered 1,897,642,000 cups of coffee and 5,895,000,000 pieces of toast.

This will go down into history as the year 1,933,000,000.

An ordinary million is just pin money. The bill for road construction alone looks like eight bars of music.

We can't understand how Congress ever okayed such a small, decimalish sum as 3.2 beer. They must have handled this in the retail department.

The Navy accepted a mere $238,000,000 with an option on the gold reserve. It ain't much. But every once in a while an admiral must swallow his pride.

We hope the cotton planters refuse that $150,000,000. We know they can do better than that in the cigar store around the corner.

'Mother' Edmonds Loses Nine 'Boys' by Vet Law

Crippled Doughboys Taken From Marine Hospital Here

There were nine less plates set at the mess in Marine Hospital today, and "Mother" E. A. Edmonds had nine less boys to watch over.

For a Baltimore and Ohio coach moved just that many veterans away from Pittsburgh and sped them towards Huntington, W. Va. The veterans' act, newly amended, had begun to function.

Inured to hardships, the nine took the transfer from their home of years like "veterans." Afflicted, some of them for years, they left with a smile on their faces and a waved "good-bye, Mom," to the Red Cross hostess who has "pampered" them at the Penn avenue institution.

Huntington Hospital, where they go, is beautiful, but different. They admitted they'll miss Pittsburgh, but with a spartan shrug. The transfer is in line with the policy of economy. Veterans who are not able to prove direct relation to Army service and their ailment must move out, unless they are so seriously afflicted they cannot. All veterans not Marines must be moved to the veterans' hospitals.

Most of the group moved today were from the Pittsburgh district. J. A. Russell is from East Liberty; Joseph Dubrowsky, Herron Hill; A. F. Mitchell, Squirrel Hill; W. C. Burke, Oil City; Fred Meiss, Altoona; Tony Julian, General, Pa.; J. M. Jones, Allentown; P. A. Lucas, Chicago, and William Koken, Black Lick.

The transfer of the group follows similar movements of the men from the hospital to other institutions. Those unable to stand the strain of a train ride were taken to the Aspinwall institution. Others who were able to walk and who were unable to trace their ailment direct to war service were sent home.

FRANK MAKES TRIAL REPORT

Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, who withdrew from the prosecution of Homestead officials, accused of altering tax records, after county detectives had appeared as character witnesses for the defendants, has submitted a report on his actions to the County Commissioners.

Pointing out that he had the approval of his superior, County Solicitor J. P. Fife, Frank declared that he did not care to lend the office of the county solicitor to a procedure so questionable.

At the time of his withdrawal, Frank declared that he did not want to have anything to do with the prosecution of a case where employes of the district attorney's office work openly for the acquittal of the defense. The Homestead defendants, including Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, C. J. McBride and others, were acquitted.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who was in the room when the report was read, said he had no comment to make.

He said, however, he would like the know whether the report expressed the attitude of the entire county solicitor's office or whether it was just the opinion of Frank.

Crafton Physician Dies in Hospital

Dr. Leonard Smith, 43, of 89 Bradford avenue, Crafton, died early today in Allegheny General Hospital. He had been a practicing physician in Crafton for the past 15 years.

He was born in Indiana, Pa., and was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Frank and Jack Smith.

BUILDING MEET SEES PICKUP IN BUSINESS

Air Conditioning Will Aid Profits, Health, Expert Declares

Air conditioning will bring better business for building owners and improved living conditions for mankind, H. A. Canon, Pittsburgh engineer, told delegates to the convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers in the Hotel William Penn today.

Cold water, ice, gas, steam and electricity, paradoxical as it may seem, he told the convention, can all be used to cool buildings.

CITES ADVANTAGE

He cited the elimination of much noise, dirt and heat from the lower floors of buildings and the stopping of draughts in the upper floors as some of the advantages of this new development. The increase in the efficiency of office workers, Canon said, is one of the main advantages of summer cooling.

Proper humidification of the air in a building during the winter, he pointed out, reduced heating bills as much as 3 per cent.

Building owners and managers must soon establish a minimum rent rate or doom their industry to bankruptcy, Leo J. Sheridan, of Chicago, chairman of the income production committee, told the convention yesterday.

EXPERIMENT LAUDED

Begun as a social experiment, Chatham Village has been a commercial success for the past two years, C. F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, told the apartment house group.

On a commercial practical basis, however, he said, planned housing is impossible for workers with incomes of less than $200 a month. Slums, he said, are being built faster than they are being torn down in some sections of the country.

Raid Fails to Bare Robbery Suspects

On a tip that three Negro theft suspects had taken refuge in a house at 1426 Hamlin street, police broke into the dwelling, when refused admittance today, they reported. They found no trace of the suspects.

Anthony Wandrisco, who has a shoe shop at 1301 North Franklin street, reported three Negroes had stolen four pairs of shoes from his place today, the third time he has been robbed recently.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

When the economic conference first met in London, there was a great deal of doubt as to just what were its hopes and aims. Well, after 10 days we are no longer in doubt. They had three reasons for meeting. The first was to cancel the debt to America. The second was to cancel the debt to America. And the third was to cancel the debt to America.

From then on they could take up any little loose odds and ends such as lowering American tariffs, stabilizing American money above the price of their own. With these accomplished, they could all go home, and if things didn't pick up in their own countries, think up something else to blame America for, then meet and have another conference. Yours, WILL.

Studying Postal Cracks

FREE GIRL WARD IN SLAYING

POTEAU, Okla., June 21.—(AP.)—Ac hance for happiness and an education instead of a trial for murder will be given Nora Boyett, 12-year-old mountain girl, who, with her half sister, Loraine, 16, yesterday related a story of cruelty at the hands of their father—ended at midnight last Friday when Nora shot her father to death in their mountain home.

County Judge Grover Flanagan heard the stories of officers and of the two girls and offered them their choice of going to the Industrial Home at Tecumseh or being paroled to some responsible person who will give them a good home and education.

HUNGRY DEER RAIDS GARDENS

Crafton police turned to deer hunting today as complaints poured into the Municipal Building of a wild fawn raiding the gardens of residents of the Second Ward.

Sighted by two milk drivers, the deer enjoyed a breakfast of young garden shoots until its would-be captors got too close. Then, with a leap, it cleared a fence and disappeared into a patch of woods at the head of North Grandview avenue.

The fawn visited the garden of Harry Meredith, Coulter street, and several other gardens before being scared off.

P. O. FISSURES BALK EXPERTS

Engineers attending the convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, in session here, are mystified by the fissures and cracks in the stone facing of the new Federal Building. Government engineers today had not yet announced what they considered as the definite cause or had they offered a remedy.

William E. Malm, Cleveland engineeer and president of the association, and F. B. Murray, Kansas City engineer, inspected the cracks yesterday. They could only guess at their cause.

Without blue prints and plans of the building before them, they explained, it was difficult to understand the building method. Malm said:

"In determining the cause of such breaks much depends on the methods of anchorage used to tie the stone to the steel. I would like to see the plans. I have never seen anything quite like those breaks before."

Murray, equally puzzled, commented:

"I have never seen cracks like those in limestone before. Stresses in the stone facing are causing the breaks perhaps, but how and why I can't tell. It is obvious, however, that settlement of the stone is not the cause."

15 OF 20 CASES SEEN TO NEED CORRECTION

Judge Lencher Checks Complaints Under New System

Beginning a double check system of hearing complaints on foster homes, Juvenile Court Judge Benjamin Lencher and William Windhorst, representative of the county division of investigation met and heard more than 20 cases yesterday and today.

In 15 of these 20 cases, Judge Lencher indicated, he will order corrections of health encironmental conditions.

In the past, it was explained, it has been the custom for the Juvenile Court judge to take the probation officer's recommendation in extending a court order for the ward's care in a home for a further six months.

MUST REPORT

Judge Lencher is now requiring visitors of the Home Finding Department to submit a written report to him on home conditions in each case. This report is checked with that submitted by county investigators. If the reports disagree, the order for the child's care is extended for only one month. Meanwhile foster parents are supposed to bring conditions up to par.

Also, in order to have a more frequent check on each ward, Judge Lencher has inaugurated the policy of only extending court orders for the care of a ward for three months instead of the customary six.

VVisitors of the home finding department are required to describe health conditions, sleeping facilities, home conditions, and the ward's progress in church and school in each report.

SIX-MONTH TASK

Judge Lencher says that he expects to complete his reading of the reports on every one of the county's wards by the first of the year.

In the cases of criminal negligence or assault and attack on a ward, Judge Lencher and the county detectives meet to discuss the cases. He said:

"We are trying to run down the oldest charges first to prevent the statute of limitations from barring possible prosecution."

WEIGHS BOY'S FATE

The fate of the 6-year-old boy, ward of the Juvenile Court, who was revealed as living with an aged woman and her deaf-mute son in a lean-to shack, will be decided by Judge Lencher tomorrow. He said:

"From the records it looks like an unhealthy physical and social environment. Unfortunately it may have become an emotional and psychological situation and the boy's feelings may be deeply rooted to the place.

LIVE IN SHACK

The 73-year-old woman who cares for the boy is an aunt of the child's deceased mother, and has cared for him since he was two weeks old, she said.

The boy and his aged guardians live in a four room lean-to shack. Tar-paper covers part of the roof, while rain comes through the gaping boards of the other rooms, keeping them damp and musty. There is a pig pen near the shack.

The barefoot, overalled boy has an impediment in his speech. Water must be carried a mile to the makeshift dwelling. One of the rooms has the earth for a floor. The boy, the aged woman and her 50-year-old deaf mute coal miner son sleep in one room.

JURY SCORES ABUSE

The environmental condition of this Juvenile Court ward came to view at the same time that the county grand jury, through its foreman, J. P. Hunter, submitted a report to Judge S. H. Gardner recommending that a committee be named to study the problem of negligence in caring for county wards.

Postage Rate Change Brings Confusion Here

The drop in local postage rate from three to two cents is expected to cause confusion when it becomes effective July 1.

Under the decreased rate letters mailed in Pittsburgh for Wilkinsburg will require a two-cent stamp, but a three-cent stamp will be required on letters mailed in Pittsburgh for McKees Rocks and many other localities in the immediate vicinity of the city.

The two-cent rate will apply only within postal districts. The Pittsburgh postal district, under the supervision of Postmaster James B. Anderson, includes many of the boroughs within a radius of 10 miles of the Pittsburgh postoffice.

To forward a letter from within the Pittsburgh postal district to any adjacent borough or city which has its own postmaster, a three-cent stamp will be necessary.

The purpose of the new regulations is to stimulate the volume of mail, which has greatly decreased since the three-cent rate became effective.

JUDGES PICKING PRIZE MENUS IN CONTEST

Now that all the entries for the first week's Prudence Penny Prize Dinner Menu Contest have been submitted, the judges have their problems before them. There have been so many entries turned in and they are so varied in their make-up that the judges have an unprecedented and serious task ahead of them today and tomorrow. Unlike other contests where it is only a matter of marking a question right or wrong, the menu contest represents much more than 2,000 entries and no two of them are alike.

As stated yesterday, it is particularly noted that many housewives made an effort to show how much they could serve in a dinner for four persons at a price as far below $1.50 as possible. This was not the real purpose of the contest. Adhering more closely to the purpose, entrants in Contest No. 2, now on, are invited to present menus in which they can use the greater part of the sum stipulated—$1.50—and thus practically demonstrate how good a dinner can be prepared for four at this cost. If, however, any housewife thinks she can serve for $1.00 or $1.25 or $1.35 a dinner as good or better than others can serve for $1.50, she is welcome to submit her menus in the contest.

SECOND CONTEST ON

Contest No. 2 is now on and, following the suggestions outlined above, it is believed that the women readers of the Sun-Telegraph will be in closer touch with the idea that Prudence Penny has in mind. As was the rule last week $100 in cash prizes will be given away as rewards for the prize dinner menus in the second week's contest. All entries for this contest must be in the mails by next Tuesday night.

Prudence Penny is particularly gratified at the results of the first week's contest. They demonstrated that the women of Pittsburgh and vicinity are keenly interested in the contest question: "Can four persons be served with a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50."

On another page of today's Sun-Telegraph there is an entry blank and complete set of rules for the second dinner menu contest. If additional blanks are desired they can be obtained for the asking at any one of the following stores: Donahoe's, Clover Farm Stores, Triangle, Krogers, Butler's or McCann's.

JUDGES PICK WINNERS

The judges will devote the greater part of their time today and tomorrow in selecting the winning dinner menus in the first week's contest. The judges are Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Mary T. Horan, president of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, and Mrs. Cyrus Trompetter, chairman of the home economics committee of the Pittsburgh section, Council of Jewish Women.

GOODWILL TOUR ARRANGED

The reception accorded the goodwill tourists from Pittsburgh last week as they traveled through the trading district south of the city was such that plans are being made for a caravan of several buses to visit the remaining section of the Pittsburgh area during the summer, it was announced today.

In a joint meeting today the general publicity committee and the wholesalers' council of the Chamber of Commerce unanimously voted to unite their efforts and to invite all the wholesale dealers, banks, educational institutions, industrial plants and other organizations of the city to send representatives on the tours for the purpose of making friends and customers for Pittsburgh.

Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the general publicity committee, said:

"Perhaps immediate returns may not be noticed by individual organizations, but when friends from the surrounding territory come to spend money in Pittsburgh the money percolates through the channels of trade and benefits every Pittsburgher."

Invitations have been received by the chamber groups from Youngstown, Grove City and Meadville to visit those places for luncheon or dinner meetings with civic bodies and business organizations, and other towns have asked for sufficiently long stops to exchange expressions of goodwill.

The next party of goodwill ambassadors will leave Pittsburgh on July 18 and return late in the following afternoon. Other parties will leave in August and September for two-day tours of different sections. Organizations desiring to be represented should communicate promptly with the Chamber of Commerce.

Graves Takes Fire As Chicago Sizzles

CHICAGO, June 21.—(AP.)—It got so hot in Chicago yesterday a grave caught fire in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Alex Mulvenna, superintendent of the place, reported. He said:

"The grave had been filled in with what was called black dirt. It really was not soil but the next thing to peat. In Ireland often there are bog fires, where peat gets overheated from the sun, and this was the same thing."

Officially it was 98 at the time, but it was hotter than that in the cemetery.

TROLLEY RIDER STABBED

Six men, who boarded a street car in Second avenue at the South Tenth Street Bridge and stabbed a passenger, were sought by police today.

The victim, Daniel Canofari, 22, of 3 Higden street, Hazelwood, was left lying on the floor of the car with three stab wounds in the the back as the assailants fled through the door.

Canofari, treated at Mercy Hospital, told police:

"They mistook me for one of the men who took part in a fight after a bowling match in Hazelwood a week ago. They dragged me from the seat, and one stabbed me three times."

More than a score of passengers were on the car when the stabbing occurred.

NEW P. O. RAMP HELD TRAFFIC SOLUTION

The dispute that has been waged between the city and the Federal government for several years over what entrance mail trucks will have to the new $8,000,000 postoffice seemed nearer solution today.

A ramp from the loading platform already built in the rear of the building, looking out on Bigelow boulevard, extending across Seventh avenue above Telegraph Square and emptying through flared ramps into a widened Strawberry way, is the new plan.

It was proposed at a conference yesterday between Mayor John S. Herron, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, City Engineer Charles M. Reppert, and Maj. Robert A. Greenfield, construction engineer for the supervising architect, United States Treasury Department.

Following the conference, Maj. Greenfield said:

"We seem nearer a conclusion than before."

Reppert and Lang said that, although definite plans and estimates have not yet been drawn up, the proposal would call for the city to widen Strawberry way from Bigelow boulevard to Grant street and pay for the condemnation of property necessary. The government would pay for the ramp.

Maj. Greenfield will take the suggestion to Washington, following preparation of estimates early next week, Lang said.

You'll quickly learn to love its clean, refreshing scent that vanishes as you rinse. For it tells you Lifebuoy is different from ordinary toilet soaps—does more!

"Take off them whiskers--I know you!"

They have been trying to fool the little man and almost did. But now he's got their number! He might have believed them, but they went too far. They claimed everything regardless of facts. They even claimed a patent on telling the truth that their ballyhoo alone should be believed. . . . . The little man knows it is just a case of whiskers advertising "dress" He knows that behind the false whiskers of tall claims, high-sounding names and "stuffed shirt" science, they're dishing out just ordinary gasoline that does better in the papers than on the road. . . . . So the little man will drive right on to the pump of honest value, honestly described--Orange American Gas, the *original orange-colored regular gas. He knows Orange American was and still is the best at regular gas price.

BEER ORDERS SPUR TRADE PICKUPS

Pittsburgh's brewing industry is doing its bit for farm relief and employment pickup, according to a survey of the breweries which revealed that more than $300,000 for new machinery alone has been spent within the last two months.

More than 500 men are being given employment by the Fort Pitt Brewing Company, Duquesne Brewing Company, Pittsburgh Brewing Company and the Brackenridge Brewing Company.

To meet the demand for beer, which they say will not be fulfilled for at least another year, the Fort Pitt brewery is rushing construction of additions to its plant at Sharpsburg. Fifty men are at work on a four-story stock room, and plans are being drawn for a new ice plant.

BUILDING VATS

The Blaw Knox Company has completed an order for twin vats, each with a capacity of 250 barrels, for aging and fermenting the brew. Another 18 vats are being built by the Midland Steel Company, with individual capacities of 500 barrels.

More than 12 carloads of grain and cereals, five carloads of hops and seven carloads of malt have been contracted for by the four concerns since last April 7.

MINE PAY RAISED

The Pittsburgh Brewing Company already has ordered about 200 carloads of miscellaneous supplies, including bottles and machinery.

The Brackenridge concern has ordered 1,000,000 bottles, 3,000,000 labels and 2,500 half barrels.

In addition to the impetus to farming and industry given by this activity, reports of industrial progress today include a 10 per cent wage increase for 1,500 miners employed by the Valley Camp Coal Company.

BACK 3RD TIME, GETS 60 DAYS

William Murray, 45, was sentenced to a 60-day workhouse term when he appeared for the third time within 24 hours before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Murray, described as one of Central Police Court's steadiest customers, was arraigned before Rothenberg in Night Court Monday and discharged. Yesterday morning he again appeared before Rothenberg on a drunkeness charge. He pleaded:

"Your honor, this is my birthday. If I come back again, give me 60 days in the workhouse."

Rothenberg freed him. When Murray appeared for the third time last night, Rothenberg said:

"Bill, you've sentenced yourself. Sixty days in the workhouse!"

Lafayette Head State Moderator

JENKINTOWN, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, has the distinction of being the first lay moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania in the last 50 years.

He was elected at a preliminary meeting last night.

Dr. Lewis was placed in nomination by the Rev. John McConkey, of Washington, Pa.

U. S. FIRST, SAYS DUQUESNE HEAD

Economic conditions should be re-established in the United States before international problems are considered, according to the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University.

Addressing the International Club at its second annual banquet at the downtown branch of the Y. M. C. A., last night, he said:

"If we build up our nation economically, international trade will take care of itself.

"The best internationalism is found on sound nationalism, and nations, like people, should mind their own affairs of state to bring about good-will and nation unity. A nation should be a perfect society."

Dr. Callahan also spoke on the cultural unity in Europe. Nations of Europe today would have to trace back to the middle ages before this unity is found, he said. At that time all the educated people spoke the same language—the Latin. He said:

"If we build up our nation economically, I think, it will help Europe build up economically. I don't think we should go and interfere in European affairs, and, I don't think you want Europeans coming over here interferring in our affairs."

AVALON THEFT SUSPECTS HELD

Two men, captured early Saturday after they were alleged to have attempted to burglarize a fruit stand in Avalon, were held for court on larceny charges by Justice of the Peace D. E. Fleming, of Avalon, last night.

They were Frank Johnson and Andy Weinck, both of 179 Lodi way, Lawrenceville. A third man, who escaped under a hail of bullets fired by Police Chief Louis Luckan, was being sought.

The pair testified the escaped man promised them $4.50 each if they assisted him in the alleged theft.

Student Stricken Ill On Eve of Graduation

On the eve of his graduation from Carrick High School, Leo Griffin, 29, of 2438 Brownsville road, Carrick, was stricken by appendicitis and taken to West Penn Hospital for an operation.

Griffin, who left school at the age of 16 to earn his living, reentered Carrick High School three years ago, paying his expenses by working nights as an employe of the postoffice.

MAUG REWARD TILT LOOMS

Norman Piccus, Cleveland taxicab driver, whose telephone call to police brought the arrest of John Maug and Edward Turpac, escaped convicts, has served notice that he intends to make application for his share in the $10,000 reward. District Attorney Andrew T. Park took this information to the County Commissioners yesterday after he had conferred with Piccus' attorney.

The Commissioners and Park announced that a conference will be held next Tuesday, when the applications for the reward will be heard, and the money allotted. The two policemen who captured the escaped prisoners are not entitled to any share of the reward, as the money, under a police fraternity agreement, goes into the police pension fund.

Ohio Man Guest Of Commissioners

There were four County Commissioners at the weekly meeting yesterday. The fourth Commissioner was Joseph F. Gorman, chairman of the board of Cuyahoga County, Ohio.

'NEW DEAL' NOW BEING DEALT INDUSTRY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, June 21.—The most interesting part of the "new deal" is now being dealt. This is the organization of industry and trade for the purpose of controling the whole machinery of production.

The depreciation of the paper dollar has caused a rise in paper prices, and paper dollars are all that we have. Many people have bought materials and products of various sorts to anticipate rising prices, and that has stimulated production. Thus part of the program has been as easy as falling off a gold standard.

Now the problem of those in control (and that, in the last analysis, means Washington), is to keep the expansion sound. They must try to prevent runaway markets. They must try to keep the output of each industry adjusted to the demand. They must try to keep costs, including wages, adjusted to prices and sales.

It does not take much knowedge to see that this is an enormous task. The thing has never been done on a nation-wide scale in a democratic country.

We have more or less completely controlled our railways. We have controlled business in general during the stress of a great war. But railways are a "public utility" and after many years of experiment few would say that we have had much success. And the war-time control of business was not dominated by economic considerations, nor was the performance regarded as more than a makeshift.

Now the aim is more ambitious and far-reaching. Instead of seeking men for work we are seeking work for men. Instead of shortage of commodities, we have surpluses. Instead of fighting profiteering, we are trying to push prices up.

And instead of admittedly dealing with a temporary emergency we are doing things which are admittedly likely to change the whole course of our industrial life. There is no use in beating around the bush—some of our leaders are talking about "social revolutions" and "planned economies" in a way which suggests lasting developments in the way of a government partnership with business.

It is hard to believe, however, that the apparent willingness of business men to enlist in the new industrial army is based on the assumption of a permanent government control. Some of them, I think, figured that the thing was coming anyhow and so they made a virtue of necessity. Probably all hope to retain their leadership and to save the enterprises they have helped to build.

Some doubtless see in the scheme a means of profit by restricting production and "stabilizing" prices. Others, perhaps, sincerely believe that by eliminating price-cutting and wastes of competition the condition of their trades may be made better.

Whatever the motive, we are now in for social control of business. "Codes" of business practice are being formulated to be submitted to a sort of government dictator. The railway "co-ordinator" is on the job.

This is going to bring up such questions as: How much shall be produced? How much of the output of each industry shall be allotted to each producer? What is the cost of production? Shall prices be controlled on the basis of the highest-cost producer or the average cost? How much profit will be allowed?

There will be a strong demand that laborers be paid higher wages for shorter hours, even at the expense of profits. In the background is the possibility that organized labor and capital may get together at the expense of consumers and taxpayers.

So complicated are the factors and so numerous the conflicting interests that no man can be sure of the results. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the experimental idea will be maintained.

STEEL OUTPUT REACHES 50%

NEW YORK, June 21.—Iron Age says:

Rising three points from 47 per cent of capacity, steel production has reached a 50 per cent rate for the first time since April, 1931. Operations have advanced from 35 per cent to 40 per cent at Pittsburgh, from 46 to 50 per cent at Chicago, from 36 to 48 per cent at Buffalo, from 50 to 55 per cent in the Valleys, from 23 to 28 per cent in Eastern Pennsylvania and from 65 to 67 per cent in the Cleveland-Lorain district. The Wheeling district remains on an 85 per cent basis, while the Great Lakes plant at Detroit continues to run at capacity. Still further gains are indicated by additional blast furnace resumptions. A steel works blast furnace has been lighted in the Valleys and one has been blown in at Chicago, with another scheduled to go in next week. At Pittsburgh two steel plant stacks will be added to the active list this week, while a third is scheduled to go in early next month.

With steel buyers increasing their specifications and pressing for shipments, mills are beginning to experience difficulty in keeping up with demand, in some cases falling behind on deliveries. These evidences of growing market tension, emphasized by the appearance of a scarcity of skilled labor in certain Eastern mills, are reminiscent of conditions which have been conspicuous by their absence since the '20's.

STOCKS BRACE IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—The wandering dollar rested on European waysides today and domestic financial markets, uncertain following their moderate setback of yesterday, were inclined to slow down their pace.

The British pound sterling, which has lately become a barometer for stocks, dropped back about 2 cents and other foreign exchanges were mildly reactionary. Shares trading opened up with a half-hearted rally, but buyers began to disappear and prices eased. The tape was about two minutes behind floor transactions at one time, but it soon began to drift idly. Most leading stocks, after moving aimlessly in the forenoon, showed some degree of firmness later. Wheat, corn and cotton were a trifle higher, although lacking their usual exuberance. Bonds were rather listless.

The alcoholic shares responded fairly well to the news of more states joining the prohibition repeal column.

The carriers were aided by announcement of Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman at Washington that progress was being made in the railway wage negotiations. He said he felt hopeful of an early as well as satisfactory conclusion of the pay reduction controversy.

With domestic trade and industry maintaining a steady forward movement, traders were inclined to pay more attention to the European situation. Enthusiasm for the London Economic Conference has been blowing hot and cold and at the moment there is considerable confusion regarding the activities at this momentous gathering.

Bankers point out that none of the countries represented in London—including the United States—has thus far made its position entirely clear. Until the various viewpoints can be clarified, it is felt that the markets both here and abroad will be subject to nervous spells.

Devaluation, revaluation or stabilization of currencies, it is pointed out, is the major problem which must ultimately be considered by the conference if any substantial success is to result. In this connection it is recalled that both England and France are confronted with huge financial barriers. The French are facing a budget deficit of some 3,500,000,000 francs with pessimistic estimates in the Chamber of Deputies that it will expand to several times this total before the end of the year. At the same time the British public debt approximates 7,700,000,000 pounds.

TRADE BUYING AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, June 21.—Cotton futures opened steady, 5 to 8 points higher, on steady Liverpool cables and trade and commission house buying. July, 9.16c; October, 9.46c; December, 9.62c; January, 9.66c; March, 9.83c; May, 9.99c.

There was some Southern selling as well as liquidation on the opening advance, but offerings were light and absorbed by demand from trade and commission house sources. By the end of the first half hour active months showed net advances of 10 to 12 points, July selling at 9.24 and December at 9.65.

Volume diminished following the early advance and fluctuations later in the morning were irregular. Offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate setbacks, however, and the market at midday was quiet but steady with July holding around 9.24 and December 9.62, or about 7 to 12 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, June 21.—Cotton, 21,000 bales, including 19,600 American. Spot in fair demand; prices five points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.91; good middling, 6.61; strict middling, 6.31; middling, 6.16; strict low middling, 6.01; low middling, 5.81; strict good ordinry, 5.61; good ordinary, 5.31. Futures closed steady. July, 5.92; October, 5.92; December, 5.94; January, 5.95; March, 5.99; May, 6.02.

GRAINS STAGE BRISK UPTURNS

CHICAGO, June 21.—Brisk upturns in grain values early today accompanied reports that rains in the Northwest were insufficient.

Estimates were current that 50 to 70 million bushels had been cut off the spring wheat prospects by heat and drought. Opening ¼@⅞ up, wheat continued to mount. Corn started ⅜@¾ higher, and subsequently made additional gains.

Wheat experts said that the outcome of the spring crop depended on whether rainfalls would stop damage from heat and drought. Pit observers said 2,500,000 bushels of wheat futures were bought for one interest alone. Advances to 79 cents for September contracts, however, led to augumented selling and to price setbacks of more than a cent a bushel.

Corn and oats averaged higher with wheat. Provisions were firm, responsive to grain strength.

RETURN TO FORM OF PITCHERS BIG AID TO BUCCOS

BUCS FINALLY MASTERING OLD JINX

SIGNS ARE THAT the Pirates finally have gained the mastery over another old pitching jinx in the person of Tom Zachary. It looked as though the Bucs were keeping the veteran left-hander in the majors after he went to the Braves from the Yankees on waivers in 1930. Zachary beat them twice in three starts during the remainder of that season, and in 1931 he took them for four out of five. Last year he got fewer starting opportunities and came out with one victory and one defeat, making the count seven games to three in his favor. But this season the tide appears to be turning. The Rovers have beaten the 36-year-old southpaw twice in three meetings, and yesterday's game marked the second time in succession he had failed to go the distance against them. That's a better record than the locals made against Zachary in any previous year.

Tom Zachary

Following the rout of Ed Brandt on Sunday, the latest victory over Zachary, which was Bill Swift's eighth win of the year, incidentally, kept up the Pirates' pleasing change of form against left-handers in general as compared with their notorious weakness against that type of hurling in 1932. Out of 22 games started by enemy southpaws up to today, the Bucs had won 15 against seven defeats, and of the games in which left-handers were held responsible for the outcome the Gibsons had won 11 and lost six.

THE RECENT TRADE of Sam Leslie for Watson Clark and Lefty O'Doul has drawn attention to the fact that player swaps between the Giants and Dodgers have been rare. This was the first exchange between the interborough rivals since 1927, when the Giants got Butch Henline and George Harper from the Phils for Fresco Thompson and Jack Scott, and then traded Henline to Brooklyn for Burleigh Grimes.

That dicker worked out to Pittsburgh's advantage a year later, as the Giants gave Grimes to the Pirates for Vic Aldridge. The latter was a total loss in New York, while in two seasons Grimes won 42 games for Pittsburgh against 21 defeats and then brought $20,000 and Percy Jones in a deal with the Braves, though Jones proved a bust as a Buccaneer.

YOU HAVE TO go back 11 years farther to find another Giant-Dodger trade. Needing a replacement for the injured Jake Daubert at first base in the middle of the 1916 race, Brooklyn swapped Catcher Lew McCarty to New Work for Fred Merkle.

In length of service, the Giants got the better of that exchange, as McCarty did some good catching for John McGraw until 1920, while the Dodgers sold Merkle to the Cubs early in the 1917 season. But for immediate requirements, Merkle served Brooklyn's purpose, as he plugged the firstbase gap and helped the Flatbush club to win the 1916 pennant.

BUT FOR THE fact that Van Mungo recently showed a return to pitching form and the trading of Watson Clark prevented any further cuts in the Brooklyn slab staff, Mungo might have been converted into an outfielder. Manager Max Carey admits that while the Dodgers were on their Western trip he was on the point of sending the big flinger to the outfield one day, but something arose to change his plans. Max still was thinking of trying the experiment when Mungo started to go well in the box again, and then the departure of Clark made it necessary to use Van for regular mound duty. But Carey hasn't changed his opinion that Mungo would make a fine outfielder. Van roams center field in batting practice and pulls a lot of surprising catches. He has a great pair of legs, and though tall and weighing more than 200 pounds he can stoop for low line drives. Besides he is a fair hitter and the fastest man on the Brooklyn club around the bases.

George Earnshaw

GEORGE EARNSHAW promises that the good pitching he did for the A's Saturday in his first start after his suspension is going to continue. It isn't only that he would like to get back that $500 fine which Connie Mack agreed to remit for good behavior, he explains. He wants to set himself right in baseball again.

"I have not taken this without learning something from it," Earnshaw said. "I am intensely sorry about it all, but all that I can do is to show my good faith in my pitching. I am not asking favors of any one. Mr. Mack has been very kind to me, in fact he has been wonderful, but from here on I am going to prove myself out there on the mound. I am back now with another chance, and I promise I'll not miss."

HEINIE MANUSH is among those showing that southpaws mean nothing to a good lefthand hitter when in his stride. Manush's strong clouting in recent weeks has had much to do with putting Washington back in the American League fight and all pitchers have looked alike to him.

Southpaw pitchers, as well as right-handers, have felt the force of Heinie's punch. Grove, Walberg, Gomez, Pennock, Hebert and others have been nicked plenty by Joe Cronon's slugging outfielder.

PITT'S FOOTBALL GAME with Centre College, scheduled for November 4, didn't attract much attention when it was first announced, many figuring it just a breather for the Panthers following their battle with Notre Dame. But word coming out of Danville, Ky., when Centre is located, indicates that the Praying Colonels are not taking the game lightly. Kentuckians point to the fine record of Coach Ed Kubale, who took over the reins in 1929, as a warning to the Panthers that things won't be easy when Centre invades Pittsburgh next fall. Kubale, who beat out all-America Red Weaver for the center post in 1921, and then played four years without missing a single minute of action and without having time-out called for him once, has developed a crack grid machine since taking charge at his alma mater.

IN 1929, KUBALE'S team won six and lost three games, and that after Centre had spent eight years in the doldrums. In 1930 the Colonels lost only to Northwestern, Kansas State and Tennessee, the last two champions of their respective conferences. In 1911 they won eight, lost two and tied one, and last season, with a squad riddled by illness, they won six and lost three.

Centre supporters, predicting an eleven in 1933 that will compare favorably with the wonder team that downed Harvard, point out that the line will average 200 pounds from end to end, and that the backfield will go around 180. And of the eleven hefties, no fewer than seven were sprinters on Centre's crack squad this last season. So, the team will have speed as well as weight, and experience may be added, as all but two of the players were regulars in 1932.

AN IDEA OF the extent to which the country at large is represented at a winter resort where there is horseracing may be gleaned from the report of one of the officials of the Hialeah track in Miami, Fla.

He checked all the automobiles in the parking lot at the course one day last season and discovered that the 3,281 cars had come from 38 states. There were also 30 machines from Canada. Florida led, of course, with New York second and New Jersey third.

Mrs. Payne Whitney

WHAT WOULD BECOME of horseracing in this country if the Whitney family suddenly decided to withdraw from the sport? Probably there wouldn't be much of it left. In looking over the field Ed Curley sees the Whitney stables as the backbone of the game. There are four owners in the group. The oldest and best known stable is that of Cornelius V. Whitney. Earlier, this stable raced under the name of Harry Payne Whitney, and the original owner was William C. Whitney, one of the two powers of his time, the other being James R. Keene. Then there is the Greentree Stable, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney and which has produced many famous thoroughbreds, notably Twenty Grand. Mrs. John Hay Whitney, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Payne Whitney, has developed a high-class stable, and Mrs. C. V. Whitney also has a string of good runners and sends them to the post at every opportunity. Hardly a day passes that does not see a horse under Whitney silks figuring prominently at one of the big tracks. In the Juvenile this year there were six starters and five of them were Whitney color bearers. There wouldn't be much to racing without the Whitneys.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: FROM BUENOS AIRES TO NEW YORK—On my recent flight from Buenos Aires to New York, 8,000 miles, I was only once out of sight of land, while flying over the River Amazon (Amazonas). This river contains one-tenth of all the running water on earth. In some parts the width of the river in 400 miles, while the Hudson River is only 315 miles long in its course. The Brazilians call the Amazon the Mediterranean of America. A LIFETIME OF 98 GOVERNORS—While the climate of French Guiana is rather healthful, life on it is dreaded by the French officials for its dreadful monotony. It is said that there always are two governors of French Guiana on the payroll. One is actually on the spot and the other on the high seas, bound to relieve his predecessor. Mme. Garveau, aged 84, boasts of having seen 98 executives of the Penal Colony come and go. THE LAST RELIC OF COLUMBUS—A metal container holding the mortal remains of Columbus was brought to light by laborers engaged in repaving the Cathedral of Santo Domingo in 1877. This metal box is the last thing left by Columbus in the New World. Hitherto it had been erroneously believed that Columbus' remains were interred in Habana. The remains transferred in 1795 are possibly those of another Spaniard, mistaken for Columbus.

TOMORROW: THE GOLDEN CITY OF LEAD.

TULSA GETS GROSKLOSS

Howard (Howdy) Groskloss, of Sheraden, Yale medical student, who is the baseball property of the Pirates, has landed with Tulsa, of the Texas League, by a circuitous route.

The collegiate infielder was optioned to the Jersey City Club, of the International League, at the finish of his school term. The situation at Jersey City was somewhat muddled and Howdy was returned to the Pirates.

Mesrs. Benswanger and others tried to place Groskloss with the Toledo Club, of the American Association, but upon the player's arrival there it was learned the Mudhens had secured another infielder and Groskloss continued on to Tulsa.

The Tulsa Club has been a Pirate farm for two years, but negotiations are in progress which may sever the connection. Groskloss has just written his mother here that he is contented in his new role. He faces one more year at the Yale School of Medicine before he will be graduated.

U.S. NETTERS WIN ABOARD

LONDON, June 21.—(AP.)—Helen Wills Moody, American holder of the British women's tennis championship, scored her second straight victory easily today in the London City title tournament at the Queen's Club defeating Mrs. M. R. King 6-0, 6-1.

Another American, Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, of Stamford, Conn., who captured the London championship last season, won from Mrs. L. Macready, 6-4, 6-4.

Both were third round matches, the winners having drawn byes for the first round.

Keith Gledhill, co-holder of the American men's doubles title with Ellsworth Vines, pulled out a brisk tussle with J. Malachek, of Austria, by scores of 6-1, 5-7, 6-4.

Martinsburg Gets W. Va. Race Track

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., June 21.—(AP.)—Plans for the first race track and jockey club under West Virginia's recently enacted law legalizing horse racing were announced today by Dr. H. G. Tinkin, former Mayor.

The plant, including a mile track, a paddock and grandstand, will be constructed on a site to be selected from three under consideration. All adjoin the city and are in West Virginia.

A 15 to 20-day meeting is to be held in the fall, after the meet at Bowie, Md., Dr. Tinkin said.

Star Hurt, Cubs Seek Outfielder

CHICAGO, June 21.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs sent a rush call for help from their Los Angeles Pacific Coast League farm today for an outfield reserve to replace Jackson Riggs Stephenson, who broke the third finger of his right hand in yesterday's game with the Giants.

It was probable that George (Tut) Stainback, young outfield star, or Marvin Gudat, a pinch hitter on the 1932 Cub team, would be obtained.

U. S. Tennis Stars Head Seeded List

LONDON, June 21.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Cal., American and British title holder, headed the seeded list for men's singles in the all-England tennis championships, starting at Wimbledon next Monday, when the draw was made today.

Seeded behind Vines, who will be defending the title he won last year, were Jack Crawford, of Australia; Henri Cochet, of France; H. W. (Bunny) Austin, of England; Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans; Fred Perry, of England; Jiro Satoh of Japan, and H. G. N. Lee, of England.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, defending champion in women's singles, was seeded first in that department. Following her were Dorothy Round and Margaret Scriven, of England, Mme Rene Mathieu, of France, Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., Hilda Krahwinkel of Germany, Mlle. J. Jedrzejowska, of Poland, and Lolette Payot, of Switzerland.

YALE NINE WINS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—(AP.)—George Parker's six-hit pitching enabled Yale to defeat Harvard, 5 to 3, yesterday, in their one hundred and sixty-seventh baseball game and the opener of their annual series.

Officials Named For Irish Day Meet

Officials for the annual sports meet of the Irish Day picnic Saturday have been named.

Grade and high school students will take part in a track and field program to begin at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. A regular hurling game between the Cork Club and the Kilkenny Hurling Club is scheduled for 3:50 o'clock.

The officials will include Leo Kelly, honorary referee; Frank E. Shaughnessey, referee; James Kelly, director of the meet; William Doyle, clerk of course; J. Edward White and Joseph A. White, assistants to clerk of course; honorary judges, John J. Gibbons, Thomas Lewis and John McCarthy; judges, Joe McDonald, James Gavigan, John McGowan, Jr., and Thomas Manion.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

LEIPERVILLE, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, 180, New York, won a 10-round decision over Popper Stopper, 177, Leiperville, last night. Rosenbloom's light-heavyweight championship was not at stake.

METCALFE MAY TOUR

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University's brilliant sprint champion, is considering two invitations for exhibitions in Europe this summer.

Sport Shorts

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—Shooting a sub-par 70 while Tommy Armour skipped to a 75, Harry Cooper, of Chicago, yesterday, tied the Scot for first honors in the Illinois Professional Golfers' tournament at Medinah Country Club. Armour's 75, with his 71 of Monday, gave him a 36-hole total of 146.

SEATTLE.—(AP.)—The Washington Racing Commission has granted a license to the Washington Jockey Club, of Seattle, to operate a horse horse track from August 2 to September 16. The one-mile track will be constructed on the Mount View Golf Club site, 14 miles south of Seattle and 18 miles north of Tacoma. The plant is to cost $150,000, exclusive of the property.

WILMINGTON, Del.—(AP.)—Lorenzo Nodarse and Arturo Randin, of the Cuban Davis Cup team, were jolted out of the foreign seedings, and Gabe Lavine, Philadelphia clay court titleholder, fell out of the American ranking list as play went into the fourth round of the Delaware state grass court tennis championships.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP.)—Ralph Redmond, of St. Petersburg, Fla., led the field of 150 odd players through the first 18 holes of the Southern amateur golf tournament's 36-hole qualifying round yesterday with a 73, two over par.

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—The New York Giants today gave up Lon Koenecke, their $75,000 "lemon" from Indianapolis, who failed to make good in several tryouts in the National League. They sold their option on the outfielder to Brooklyn. He now is with the Jersey City International League Club.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(INS.)—Immediate action was sought in the House of Representatives today on the Maypole bill, calling for creation of a commission to govern horse racing in Illinois. The Senate, by a vote of 33 to 3, passed the bill last night without debate.

TRENTON, N. J.—(INS.)—The Siracusa bill, legalizing horse racing in New Jersey, went to Gov. Harry A. Moore today following its unexpected passage by the Senate last night. It is considered more or less a gesture, as it cannot go into effect until the Senate passes the Altman resolution amending the State Constitution to allow gambling and bookmaking.

BOSTON, June 21.—As the National League race waxes warm a better feeling is noted in the pitching division of the Pirates.

Manager Gibson and his aides today were quite confident that things were looking up in the hurling crops, basing conclusions on the performances of the club's staff in the four consecutive victories the Buccos acquired up to today.

Steve Swetonic, Heinie Meine, Larry French and Bill Swift turned in smart performances in the four sequential triumphs, including yesterday's, a development that surely was pleasing to Gibson and his players.

SWIFT COMES BACK

Swift opened the present season with all kinds of promise, but after holding the center of the pitching spotlight for weeks, Bill suddenly went into an eclipse from which he did not emerge until yesterday when he held the Braves to six hits while the Pirates were winning, 6 to 2.

Gibson also finds great consolation in the return to batting form of Catcher Earl Grace, whose offensive thrusts were big parts of the cluster of victories. Then, too, there is reason to believe that Adam Comorosky is to be a big help to the club now that Fred Lindstrom has been benched for weak batting.

The Polish outfielder had a lot to do with the Pirates' third straight success in Boston. When Manager McKechnie announced Tom Zachary as the day's pitcher, Gibson ordered Commy into left-field and the speedy ball hawk proceeded to rap out two doubles and a single.

The Pittsburghers won yesterday's frolic in the third inning when they rushed five runs over the plate and hammered Zachary off the mound, Starr, Frankhouse and Brandt followed the veteran lefthander to the hill. Tommy Thevenow singled with two out in the second to score Pie Traynor with the first run of the game. The contest was put on the ice in the next frame.

LLOYD STARTS DRIVE

L. Waner started the big drive with a single. Comorosky followed with a single, and when Whitney threw wide to first Lloyd scored. P. Waner walked, but Traynor forced Paul. Suhr and Vaughan followed with hits, and Starr relieved Zachary. With two out in the inning, Grace doubled to score two tallies.

Swift had only one bad inning. Bill allowed the Braves two runs and three hits in the fifth. In the sixth he showed real class by holding the Braves scoreless after runners reached third and first with none out.

BUC SCHEDULE CHANGED

Changes in the schedule for the impending Pirate-Dodgers series in Brooklyn were announced today. A single game will be played on Saturday, and the teams will meet in a double-header on Sunday. The original card called for a twin bill Saturday and a single game Sunday.

Sharkey, Carnera Ease Training Grind

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 21.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera's boxing mentors today called a halt in the training of the giant Italian, who meets Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight title, June 29. The Man Mountain is "under weight," according to his handlers—that is, he is under the poundage desired for his ring entry. There will be no more strenuous work for several days.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 21.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey discarded rope skipping in favor of shadow-boxing today in preparing for his title bout with Primo Carnera. He believes the former exercise is a strain on the heart and of no particular benefit.

WOMEN'S CHAMPION WINS IN W. PA. TENNIS

MISS ANDERSON ADVANCES TO THIRD ROUND

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Miss Dorothy Anderson, of Butler, defending champion, got off to a good start as women's play began today in the annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championship tournament on the Stanton Heights Golf Club courts.

Drawing a bye in the first round, Miss Anderson moved on into the third round to win a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Miss Elizabeth Cone.

Accompanying Miss Anderson into the third round were Miss Frances Grimes, who also drew a bye in the first round and won over Miss Alberta Friesell, 6-0, 6-2, and Miss Sana Mournsouff, who won over Miss Dorothy Miller, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

In first-round matches in the women's singles, Miss Vida Hurst defeated Miss Helena Kaufeld, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, and Miss Margaret Painter defeated Miss Margaret Watson, 6-4, 6-2.

MEN CONTINUE PLAY

Matches in the fourth round of the men's singles were to feature today's late afternoon competition in the tournament. Men's and mixed doubles also are booked.

Bill Haseltine, Philadelphia ace and 1930-31 captor of the McCahill Cup, battles LeRoy Wier, crack Clevelander, in main engagement of the day and the most promising fracas of the tourney to date. Dr. Dave O'Loughlin seeks to carry P. A. A. colors to a second victory of the year over the redoubtable Bob Lampus, Shannopin captain.

Another classic combat comes up later with Sam Harbison encountering Paul Barber in a duel that rivals closely in interest the Haseltine-Wier debate. Frank Smith, Edgewood's leader, mingles with Frank Broida, Pittsburgh Parks premier.

Twenty-two feminine racqueters are entered in quest of the Honus Wagner trophy, now held by Dorothy Anderson, of Butler, and the University of Southern California. Miss Anderson heads a seeded group of four, with Dorothy Jarvis, '32 runner-up; Mrs. Martha Guthrie Snowdon, Allegheny Country Club star, and Margaret Carspecken, brilliant Morgantown volleyer, following in the order named.

John Brown and Eddie Alcorn, Mount Lebanon crew now of Edgewood, rose to dominate yesterday's all-doubles slate with a spectacular upset victory over the potent coalition of B. F. Arkle, 1932 singles, doubles, and mixed doubles victor, and Bill Thompson, Wash-Jeff net leader, 7-5, 6-8, 6-3.

O'LOUGHLINS VICTORS

Seeded dual outfits breezed through without exception, Dave and John O'Loughlin, heading the select array, swamped the Westinghousers, Burgwin and Ashcraft with loss of but one game. Broida, aligned with Billy O'Loughlin, instead of with his usual sidekick, Irvin Goodman, eased past the junior duo, Eddie Carson, of Greensburg, and Bill Fay, of Mount Lebanon, 6-3, 6-1, and later advanced to stanza three by default of Dillinger Hixson, who failed to muster a partner.

Lockhart and McCook Reed, rated third, forged into the quarter-finals with impressive wins over the Weiss-Crist and Cochrane-McCaskey contingents.

Entries in the women's doubles event may be filed at Stanton Heights till 6 p. m. today. Tilting gets under way tomorrow morning. The summary:

MEN'S DOUBLES

First Round.

Upper half—W. Russell Unger and H. M. Rinehart defeated Rufus Hartig and Ben Haseltine, 6-1, 6-4; John R. Brown and Edgar Alcorn defeated B. F. Arkle and William Thompson, 7-5, 6-8, 6-3.

Lower half—Frank Broida and William O'Loughlin defeated Eddie Carson and William Fay, 6-3, 6-1; Dillinger R. Hixson and partner won from W. H. Brown, Jr., and D. M. Gilmore by default.

Second Round.

DUNLAP WINS 19-HOLE DUEL AT HOYLAKE

HOYLAKE, England, June 21.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., leading United States entrant in the British Amateur Golf Championship, narrowly escaped elimination in the fourth round today as Alaric De Forest, of the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews, carried him to the nineteenth hole before succumbing.

Hard-pressed all the way, the former American college champion squared the match for the second time on the incoming nine at the eighteenth hole, where his opponent was bunkered, and then won the first extra hole.

Keeping pace with the American, C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canadian holder of the United States title, continued his brilliant play to defeat J. Walker, 6 and 5, and Roger Wethered, former titleholder and one of the British favorites, won a fourth round match from Henry Howell, 3 and 2.

TOLLEY ADVANCES

Earlier in the day the long-driving Cyril Tolley, holder of the championship in 1920 and 1929 and an American resident for several years, won from T. C. J. Manners, 2 and 1, with a rather erratic display.

Two American residents of London, Robert Sweeny and Douglas Grant, advanced to the fourth round, but Charles Sweeny, brother of Robert, was defeated in a third round encounter by H. N. M. Fogg, 4 and 3.

Jack McLean, 22-year-old Scottish hope for the title and tabbed by most of the critics as the man to beat, was eliminated in the fourth round, 1 up, by a fellow Scotsman, Edward P. Kyle.

The match between Dunlap and De Forest, older brother of the 1932 champion, John De Forest, who was eliminated in the first round, was touch and go from the start, with first one and then the other leading.

MATCH IS THRILLER

They turned the first nine with identical medal scores of 39, but with De Forest leading, 1 up. The Englishman also took the tenth, but George squared the match on the thirteenth as he sank a putt for a birdie 2, and they ended the round all even. At the first extra hole Dunlap got his par 4 as De Forest failed, and the match was his. The cards:

Tolley joined the favorites in the fifth round bracket by beating a fellow Briton, Sam Robinson, 1 up, for his second victory of the day.

The young Canadian, Jack Nash, came through with his second victory of the day in an exciting match with John Burke, British Walker cup player, decided at the nineteenth hole, after disposing of the Irish veteran, Lionel Munn, 4 and 2, in the third round.

Douglas Grant defeated F. G. Fairlie, 3 and 2, in the fourth round to join Dunlap among the last 32, but Robert Sweeney was eliminated by E. Hatton, 4 and 3.

GREGG WINS SENIOR TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

Flashing the same form that carried him to two national senior golf championships, Dr. George T. Gregg, Oakmont veteran, laughed at the so-called Hulton Hades, at Oakmont, and chalked up his third victory in the Western Pennsylvania Senior championship yesterday, scoring a 37-38—75. He led by nine strokes the largest and strongest field the tourney has known.

In second place was Robert Smith, Greensburg barrister and president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, who won the title in 1931 and 1932, but found the scorching pace set by the doctor too fast yesterday. Tied with the local prexy was George Ormiston, veteran secretary of the local governing body, who took 46 strokes over the outward trek but electrified the small gallery by coming home in 38.

Jimmy Crookston, Stanton Heights star, had an 86 for fourth place.

GROGAN MATCHES ON

Today the second half of the Grogan Cup matches are being played over the links of the Highland Country Club.

The Chieftains, of Shannopin, go into today's battle with a big lead garnered on the Shannopin course two weeks ago. The Highlanders do not feel that this obstacle is too big to overcome, however, and many interesting battles will be staged.

The next big tourney locally will be the West Penn women's two-day affair, scheduled for the Westmoreland Country Club next Monday and Tuesday. According to Mrs. Chester Lehman, the entries are coming in fast, and a large field is expected.

In an invitation mixed foursome tournament at St. Clair yesterday, Mrs. Langfitt, of the home club, and Mr. Boucek, of Highland, led the field with a net 87.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, of South Hills, topped the field in the first division with a low net of 68, scoring a gross 87. Mrs. McCann and Mr. Shaffer led in the second division with 92-20—72.

In an invitation one-day affair for women at Shannopin, Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, won the low gross prize with a score of 88. The low net in the first division was scored by Mrs. E. J. Fird, when 99-28—71. In the second division Mrs. J. L. Lloyd, of South Hills, won with 116-40—76.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

There are a number of really critical points in a golf swing where sometimes it is easier to do what is wrong than what is right, and where a mistake leads to confusion. I long ago have given up any idea that one point can be of vastly more importance than any other. Always the one under consideration seems the most vital, because one sees the utter futility of trying to hit the ball properly without the correct action here. But after all we come back to the fact that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link.

Bobby Jones

So I will not say that the start down from the top, the embarkation upon the hitting stroke, is most important. But certainly it is a critical point, where the proper action is not as obvious as we find it in some other places, and after which, in the increasing speed of the stroke, it is most difficult to retrieve an error.

NOT CLUBHEAD 'THROW'

The old idea, which has been utterly disproved by the high-speed motion picture camera, was that the downward motion was originated by a "throw" of the clubhead involving the initial use of the hands and wrists. There were a number of reasons why this would not work, but the chief one was that the power in the "cock" of the wrists was used up before it could possibly do any good. Obviously the capable players who promulgated this doctrine did not actually do anything of the kind. They themselves hit the ball just as we do now, but they had no high speed camera and they thought they were doing something else.

I dare say that no two expert players would describe the way in which they sense this motion exactly alike, even though the camera might show their action to be identiacal. And, after all, it is this sense or feel by which the golfer must play. But I do not believe that one expert could be found who would not say that throwing the clubhead was the last thing he would think of doing, and I do believe that everyone to a man would insist that the first action had something to do with the left side, left elbow or the left arm.

Tension is a dangerous word to use with reference to a golf swing. When it is used it must be distinguished from stiffness. I think that one of the real necessities of timing and power in a golf stroke is the tension which must exist in the left arm at the top of the swing, and the stretching which takes place down the left side of the body in starting the swing downward.

HIPS SOURCE OF POWER

The hips must be a source of great power, if they are used properly, and the trouble with any conception of starting the downswing with the hands or arms is that it involves danger of inducing a blow with which the hips can never catch up. In the end, there must be a movement of the hands and arms across the body, but this must not take place too soon. If the arms once get ahead of the hip-turn, then all effect of body power must be lost for want of any kind of transmitting connection.

My effort in hitting a golf ball is to direct every source of power which I possess toward increasing the speed of the clubhead. The first sense that I have in starting down is that of pulling against the tension in my left arm, and this pull, as nearly as I can locate it, starts in my left hip. By moving this hip ahead of my swing the power of the hip-turn is first transmitted up the left side of my body and along my left arm to my hands, and, by leading with this hip all the way down, I am able to use the full amount of this power and supplement it at the right time with that of the arms shoulders and wrists.

Naturally, these actions are not separated by any clear line. It is merely a question of which starts first and which stays ahead. Actually they are all blended together, and in the well-timed stroke they all reach a peak at the same time.

U. S. Chess Team Increases Lead

FOLKSTONE, England, June 21.—(AP.)—The United States was again a winner in the team tournament of the International Chess Federation, the twelfth round of which was contested today in the early session. The United States defeated Lithuania, 4-0. The leading scores:

United States, 37-10; Czechoslovakia, 31½-12½; Hungary, 29½-14½; Sweden, 28½-16½; Poland, 27½-14½; Austria, 27-19; Latvia, 24½-16½; France, 24-21; Lithuania, 23½-22½.

YAROSZ WHIPS SLAUGHTER

CLEVELAND, June 21.—(AP.)—Before a crowd of 5,858 cash customers, who paid $12,104.50 to see the twice postponed show in the Public Auditorium last night, Ted Yarosz, 23-year-old Pittsburgh middleweight, easily whipped Sammy Slaughter, veteran Negro puncher, of Terre Haute, Ind., in a spectacular 10-round bout that followed the main bout between Johnny Risko and Patsy Perroni.

A fine right-hand punch that exploded with the ease of a jab on Slaughter's chin carried Yarosz to victory. His powerful blows kept Slaughter in trouble and forced him to miss time and again with his own efforts.

One of those speeding rights caught Slaughter with his full force in the opening round and sent him to the canvas for a nine count. An equally effective left hook to the stomach upset the Negro for no count in the ninth.

Slaughter won only one round, the fourth, when he beat Teddy in a sensational exchange of body blows. In every other stanza Yarosz took Slaughter's crashing rights without a flicker.

Perroni easily defeated Risko. A left that whistled about Risko's jaw and a right that rattled in the same sector carried Perroni through with a margin to spare.

MAJOR LEADERS' MARGINS SLIM

NATS, REDBIRDS PRESS YANKEES AND GIANTS

Associated Press.

New York's two baseball clubs, the Giants and the Yankees, appear ready to sink or swim together this season. And the danger of their sinking is not to be regarded lightly.

When the Giants moved into the National League lead on June 4, they started the first stretch of any appreciable length in six years that two clubs from the same city have topped the major leagues. Now it appears more than likely that they will go down at the same time.

MARGINS NARROW

Twice in the past few days the Yanks have turned aside the Washington threat just in the nick of time. Today their margin was only one game and the Giants had only half that lead over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was Babe Ruth who led the Yankees out of danger yesterday and paced them to a 15-to-8 victory over the Chicago White Sox when a defeat would have thrown them into a tie with the idle Senators for the American League lead. The Babe climbed out of a sick bed and promptly made the Chicago fans wish he had remained there by clouting his fifteenth homer as a major part of the seven-run rally in the sixth inning that put the game away.

The Giants, after ringing up two straight shutouts against their old rivals, the Chicago Cubs, went down to 5-3 defeat. Bud Tinning and Burleigh Grimes collaborated on a good pitching job for the Cubs.

St. Louis neatly mowed a game off the Giants' lead by trouncing the Brooklyn Dodgers, 15-4, gathering 17 hits, including homers by Leo Durocher and Joe Medwick in the eighth inning when they scored eight runs.

BUCS BEAT BRAVES

Pittsburgh's Pirates beat the Boston Braves, 6 to 2, for their fourth straight victory as Bill Swift pitched six-hit ball and the Bucs put over five runs in the third. The Phillies took two games from the Cincinnati Reds, 7-4 and 7-3. A 16-hit assault enabled Johnny Jackson, former University of Pennsylvania flinger, to win his first major league start with ease and 15 more blows, including Chuck Klein's thirteenth homer, won the second battle.

Although outhit, the Philadelphia Athletics snapped their losing streak with a 9-4 triumph over Detroit and broke their fifth-place deadlock with the Tigers. The Boston Red Sox pounded Belve Bean hard in the late innings and downed the Cleveland Indians again, 9 to 5.

Irish Day Sports Bill Offered by Seals

This is Irish Night for the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in their weekly radio broadcast over WCAE.

The program will be based on the twenty-ninth annual picnic and athletic meet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Allegheny County, to be held at Kennywood Park, Saturday afternoon, in which thousands of Irish residents of the community will participate.

J. V. McCarthy

Joseph Regan

John D. Holohan, graduate athletic manager of Duquesne University, who is chairman of the athletic committee for the outing, will be the speaker and will tell about the hurling game between the Cork and Kilkenny teams, of Philadelphia, and the parochial school games and other sports features.

The Irish Fiddlers, consisting of the three McCarthy brothers, J. J., James and J. V., and Joseph Regan, will furnish the musical background, playing three violins and a guitar, and John Curran, Irish tenor, will sing.

Rounding out the program, Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and Frank Smith, local tennis satellites, will be interviewed by Paul G. Sullivan, secretary of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, on the progress of the West Penn championship tournament, being played at the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies, with Leland Becraft announcing, and the program will go on the air at 6:45 o'clock for a run of a half-hour.

JACKIE WILSON IN NEW YORK

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts, Amen Corner picnic, Turner Park, afternoon.

Tommy Loughran vs. Steve Hamas, 10 rounds; Adolph Heuser vs. Abe Feldman, 8 rounds, and Jumbo Moran vs. Billy DiBello, Lou Poster vs. Eddie Mader, Phil Cohen vs. Vic Bernard, Buddy Howard vs. Izzy Singer and Ed Haughton vs. Sam Portney, 4 rounds each, Yankee Stadium, New York.

Young Tommy vs. Little Pancho, 10 rounds, Oakland, Cal.

Cecil Payne vs. Frankie Wallace, 10 rounds, Cincinnati.

Jimmy Braddock vs. Les Kennedy, 10 rounds, Jersey City, N. J.

Little Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight boxer, has gone to New York to seek fistic fame and fortune.

Victor over Tommy Paul, Johnny Pena and other notables and holder of a draw with Midget Wolgast, the flyweight champion, Wilson has attracted considerable attention in the East, and when he received in invitation to box under the management of influential interests in New York he jumped at the chance. He is in training now in the New York gyms and may be expected to make his first appearance there shortly.

UNAPPRECIATED HERE

For all he has been very successful here, Wilson's boxing has not been very much appreciated by the fans. They didn't like his clever boxing style and light hitting, as compared with the more rugged work of other boxers who were not such consistent winners, and, as a result, he has made very little money. He may do better trying his luck elsewhere, and certainly can't do worse.

Jack Zivic says he picked Max Baer to win over Max Schmeling, and now likes Primo Carnera to defeat Jack Sharkey when they meet next week. Says he thinks the Primo is greatly improved and will win the heavyweight title and hold it a long time.

They tell a good story on Ted Yarosz, the Monaca middleweight. While he was in Cleveland for his bout with Sammy Slaughter, he was crossing a street with some companions when the traffic lights changed. His pals took it on the run and got across, while Ted sought refuge in a safety island. When he finally rejoined his friends he was asked why he didn't take a chance and run across, and he uncorked this classic quip:

"I still want a crack at that middleweight title."

DUNDEE BOUT DATE SET

Announcement was made today by John Hernon, Hickey Park promoter, that he has virtually settled upon July 24 as the new date for the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee bout, to be held at Forbes Field. Hernon saw Yarosz defeat Sammy Slaughter in Cleveland last night, and was highly pleeased with the performance, which he says was one of the best efforts ever turned in by Ted.

Eddie Zivic and Battling Gizzy will box a return bout in the main event of 10 rounds at Hickey Park next Monday night. Fritzie Zivic meets Don Asto in one of the two eight-rounders and there will be two six-round preliminaries.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

CHICAGO, June 21.—You can paste these words in your straw hat—and when September 15 comes around don't throw the hat away. But the words are these: For the first time since George M. Cohan penned his war song, the Yanks are going.

Nick Altrock

I don't say they've got soap on their britches and are zooming down the chutes. But they ain't what they used to was. Not when the Boston Red Sox can take them for four in a row.

Joe McCarthy's lads are still very malicious with their bludgeons, but his pitchers are beginning to chip and crack. It used to be when the Yanks got a three-run lead the game was as safe as a 5 per cent bond. I mean safer! Now when they're half a dozen runs ahead they still may have to put up more margin.

So all the Yankees need are a couple of pitchers. Still, that's all Mrs. O'Leary needed to put out the Chicago fire when it started.

MOVAN SCORES 17TH VICTORY

Teddy Movan is contemplating with great pride his seventeenth amateur boxing victory today. The McKeesport A. C. welterweight whipped Regis Golden, of the J. L. Thomas Club, in the feature bout of the inaugural show of the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club on the North Side last night.

Matchmaker Eddie McIntee put on a six-bout card that was brim full of action. There were no knockouts, though Gregory Bianchi and Bobby Cummings both toppled from the ring in the second round of their 126-pound class scrap. The summary:

126-pound class—Gregory Bianchi, J. L. Thomas Club, defeated Bobby Cummings, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Bill Marsh, Emerald A. C., defeated Tony De Sanders, J. L. Thomas Club.

147-pound class—Jimmy Clark, Superior A. C., defeated Joe Sandusky, Emerald A. C.; Joe Thomas, North Side A. C., defeated Billy De Luca, J. L. Thomas Club; Teddy Movan, McKeesport A. C., defeated Regis Golden, J. L. Thomas Club.

160-pound class—Cliff Armstrong, North Side A. C., defeated Steve Krosnick, Emerald A. C.

'Pals,' Sarazen, Hagen Tell Britons

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 21.—(AP.)—The United States Ryder Cup team of golf professionals, header by Walter Hagen, arrived today to be greeted aboard ship by Ted Ray and other British golfers on behalf of the British Professional Association.

Hagen laughed at reports here that there was any dissension between himself and Gene Sarazen. He said:

"Gene is the greatest fellow in the world. We've always been pals."

To which Sarazen nodded agreement as he said:

"I'm always pulling Walter's leg. He's a much beter captain than I ever can hope to be."

The team proceeded directly to London and tomorrow will go on to Southport, where the matches will be played Monday and Tuesday.

PITT AND TECH CUT FOOTBALL SEAT PRICES

By JESS CARVER

There will be only two three-buck college football games put on in Pittsburgh next fall. Many of the games listed for the city may be worth more than three smackers, but John Q. Fan will be asked to lay three on the line for only two.

Pitt and Tech made a joint announcement of their grid prices for the coming fall yesterday. Prices have been cut for all contests save the Pitt-Navy and Tech-Notre Dame affairs, the top for both still being three dollars, with four for a box, two for the corners, and one smacker for a seat back of the end zone, which, by the way, is just about as good a spot from which to view a game as any.

FANS HAVE CHOICE

By making a special scale for the corner seats (if the Pitt Stadium can be said to have corners) the fans are offered four choices in the way of prices for each game.

The admission charges for the various games follow:

	Side.	Corner.	End.	Box.
Pitt-W. & J.	$1.50	$ .75	$ .50	$2.00
Tech-Temple	2.00	1.00	1.00	2.50
Pitt-Navy	3.00	2.00	1.00	4.00
Tech-Notre Dame	3.00	2.00	1.00	4.00
Tech-W. & J.	1.50	.75	.50	2.20
Pitt-Centre	1.00	.50	.50	1.50
Pitt-Duquesne	2.00	1.00	1.00	2.50
Pitt-Nebraska	2.50	1.50	1.00	3.00
Pitt-Tech	2.50	1.50	1.00	3.00

SERIES EXTENDED

Tech and Temple have extended their football agreement for two more years, the Skibos meeting the Owls in Philadelphia next year and Temple coming here again in 1935.

The Tartans have taken two of the three games played with Temple to date, the third a night affair in Philadelphia last fall, winding up in a 7-7 deadlock. Tech won in 1929 by a score of 33 to 13 and in 1930, 19 to 13.

Herrera to Seek Bout for Title

CHICAGO, June 21.—(INS.)—A guarantee of $30,000 will be made to the winner of the Tony Canzoneri-Barney Ross lightweight championship bout to defend his title this summer against Tony Herrera, El Paso (Tex.) contender, it was announced today.

Ray C. Alvis, manager of Herrera, made the offer, adding that the bout will be held either in Pittsburgh or Chicago. Herrera whipped Wesley Ramey, overweight conqueror of Canzoneri, in a 10-round bout at Grand Rapids last week.

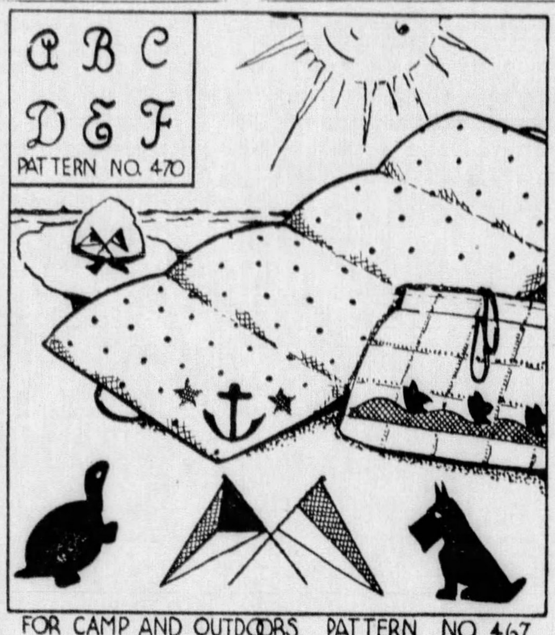
Art Rooney Picks Training Camp Site

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 21.—The Pittsburgh club of the National Professional Football League will train at Newell's Grove, near Jones' Mills, Westmoreland County, this fall, it was announced here today by Art Rooney.

The date of the training camp will depend upon the schedule arrangement which is to be made up at a meeting in Chicago soon. The Pittsburgh club expects to carry 30 players to the camp and will remain two weeks. Efforts will also be made to card one or two exhibition games which may be played in Greensburg.

OUTDOOR ACCESSORIES



By LAURA WHEELER

As vacation time draws near, everyone commences to plan outdoor activities. The beach, the lake, the woods, lure us. To enjoy them thoroughly, we want accessories that add to our comfort. And what could be grander than the lounging rug all properly padded for comfort, and that can be rolled up and carried? Glazed chintz oilcloth, or any other waterproof material, is both cool and not averse to wet bathing suits. A roomy bag, lined with waterproofed material is ideal for bathing accessories or an outdoor week-end. Fitting motifs, appliqued of felt or cotton material, or embroidered in outline stitch make these outdoor accessories distinctive. The motifs shown are all sized to look well on bathing suits, and some are especially adapted for kiddies' sun suits. Pattern No. 467 contains the six motifs illustrated as well as directions and yardages for making the rug and the bag. Price of pattern 10c.

For easy identification of personal belongings this alphabet—Pattern No. 470—offers a short cut. All you need do is press 'em on! Of a washable ink, they permit laundering. The initials are 3-16 of an inch high.

FINANCIAL AID FOR FRESH AIR HOMES ASKED

Twelve thousand Pittsburgh school children are in "great danger of permanent damage to their health" from lack of proper food, it was revealed today when contributions for the Lillian Fresh Air Home at Valencia were asked by the Kingsley Association.

This figure was supplied by Dr. Harry B. Burns, director of hygiene for the schools.

The camp will open next Monday on a curtailed schedule of only four weeks, because of lack of funds, according to Mrs. Charles C. Cooper, director of Kingsley Association. Because of the widespread suffering among Pittsburgh children this summer, an effort is being made to obtain additional funds to maintain the camp throughout the summer.

Through an arrangement with the Family Society, many of its families will be cared for at the camp during this first period, with the Society re-allocating their allowances to the camp. This amounts to $1.80 per person for two weeks against the total cost of $10.

The cabins and cottages at the camp will care for 250 persons, including 40 mothers and their babies, according to Mrs. Cooper.

A tentative plan for providing a two weeks' outing for 1,250 undernourished children and mothers during the summer will permit individuals and clubs to contribute to the support of needy persons whom they may select from a list of cases. A check for $10 to the Lillian Fresh Air Home, Kingsley Association, 220 Larimer avenue, insures a vacation with proper food and care to one individual.

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER XXXI.

The current of the Sepik is very swift as it carries out to sea, and as far back as the volcano Manum we found that the ocean was discolored with muddy overflow. As we gradually approached, we could clearly define a channel of driftwood and small logs that had been emptied from the great river's mouth. Slowly the upright objects that lend this stockade effect to the horizon evolved into tall, straight trees on the swampy banks; behind these are sago swamps, and behind them is well-nigh impenetrable jungle.

Then, at last, the mouth of the river! It is 400 feet wide and 90 feet deep. As we made a beautiful, wide turn in, I could feel the surge of the swift current against the schooner.

The skipper snapped his directions to the boy at the wheel, and the engine battled almost futilely against the rushing waters. The rest of us leaned forward anxiously; and when I saw that we were now between the swamp and the jungle banks of the river, I felt as if we had entered a great portal that had swung to behind us. The laughing green sea back of us, even the outline of an active volcano now dim against the sky, seemed friendly things.

The fast current carries down an unending jumble of driftwood; sometimes logs come down in almost solid mass. The river now was reasonably clear of debris, but this danger, combined with the compass-addling twistings of the river's course, and occasional mudbanks, made navigation at night so dangerous that after proceeding for about five miles we cast anchor until dawn.

TALK OF EXPEDITION

Sleepily, one by one, the skipper, mate, and engineer went below, until only Jim and Brearly and I were left on top. The two recruiters talked of their forthcoming mad expedition into uncontrolled and unmapped territory.

It was to be a six months' expedition. They had planned to take with them two or three months' supplies, leaving the rest at the mission at Marienberg. They would return to Marienberg with their recruits, concentrate them there, replenish their supplies, and go again to the hinterland.

And there was more to it than recruiting. Jim had a notion that he knew where to locate oil deposits. There is oil in the Sepik region.

We sat for an hour or more, talking; I stretched out in the wicker chair, now brought over to the rail. Brearly sat on deck, his knees clasped in his hands, and his head against my knees. Jim, bless him, in the chair next to me, his big pioneer's hands encasing one of mine. Tomorrow we should be in Marienberg, and in another day or two we three who had become distinctly fond of each other would say good-by forever. None of us knew when we should find our way back to civilization again, if ever. Not that we worried about it, for wandering over the world makes a fatalist of a body. Still, it wasn't a happy thought just then that I should probably never know what eventually happened to Jim and Brearly, nor they of me.

Brearly, feeling low with a touch or fever, disappeared, to return shortly with mattresses and pillows, which he spread on the deck and upon which he stretched himself for the night. But first he placed one of the pillows at the back of my chair for my head.

DISCUSS THE FUTURE

Jim and I talked on quietly. At length I said: "And when you're through with this expedition, Jim, then what? You'll have money, and there'll be no need to stay in the Territory any longer."

"I'll go down south, spend a lot of money recklessly, and probably be broke in a couple of years. Then I'll come back again to New Guinea."

"But what will New Guinea do to you in the end, Jim? We know what it does to those that let their lives lie out here. You can't come back, always."

"Yes, I shall come back, always. I've tried staying away—twice. It will be New Guinea's way of getting even with me. I am going out here to make my fortune out of human lives; to persuade native boys and men to sign themselves away to a foreign master for a term of years. They'll get a few trinkets out of it; I'll get a fortune, if I live and succeed. There's a balance to be evened up. You rarely get anything for nothing in this world."

Jim was looking reflectively out over the dark river to the shore, where a signal fire glowed. The starlight softened his likably homely profile. Except for distant kundus there was no sound around us save the slapping of water against the schooner, and an occasional creak as the swift current moved it around a point or so. For a moment I saw New Guinea's chastisement of Jim. I saw him alone in all this great expanse of mountain and jungle, alone forever, spiritually and bodily. I saw, and sadly, what the years would do to this man who was cast of such excellent stuff. Are there not those pitiable derelicts in Rabaul who were once strong and straight and adventurous, before they sold their souls to this land?

A STRANGE POWER

Once you let the tropics and the jungle get under your heart, they've got you. Then one's life is like those tropic trees whose roots grow down from the branches to the waiting earth. Once the seed germinates and flourishes, there is no stopping the eager roots; no matter how far you grow, they will shoot forth and grow until they reach the ground again. Pruning them, tearing them away, does no good, as long as the tree itself stands.

Jim knew that this was so, and I knew that for him it was so.

Recruiting of natives for the broad purpose of obtaining labor that New Guinea may be built up and carried forward, is one thing. Persuading men to leave their jungle villages, severing the tie with their own kind, for the nefarious purpose of making money out of the traffic, is something else. Jim, despised himself for it. He told me so, for he was a kindly man; but where the white man forces his way, there stalks his lust for gold. Jim was a sinner against the code of brotherhood, he must pay the penalty. He might leave this land, glad to put behind him the enervating, voluptuous beauty of it, along with all its sordidness; he might go back to his normal environment and companionships; he might even find the love that every human being needs to fulfil life. But eventually the dank, sweet smell of the jungle, the aching desire for its strangeness and stillness, the wanting of its cool wild rivers and its unusual dangers, these will draw him as inexorably as the moon draws the tide. And he must leave everything to find them again.

I know, because as I write this there is a great longing within me to go back. I want it all again so terribly. But Jim was infinitely closer to New Guinea than ever I have been.

A SURPRISE VISIT

I echoed him forlornly: "You're right, Jim. We get nothing for nothing."

He said not a thing. But for a second he laid his cheek against my arm, like a lonely boy.

After a short interval, I suggested: "Wouldn't some sandwiches taste fine?" And he betook himself obligingly down to Elisa's precincts to make some for us.

It must have been 11 when we heard the engine of a schooner bringing up behind us. The hurrying putt-putt of it was some distance back, beyond innumerable twistings and turnings of the river. A schooner on the Sepik at any time is a great event; to hear one bearing down upon us at night, unseen and unexplained, had all the elements of a thrill. Jim and I leaned over the rail, straining our eyes to see who might be thus hastening up the treacherous river under cover of darkness. Soon the schooner not only appeared, its mast lights shining high and clear, but drew alongside of us, and by the light of a couple of hurricane lamps fastened itself with lines to the Nuloa. Then the thick-spectacled, bearded, kindly face of Father Kirschbaum peered up from the Gabriel. He had been up the coast, and was returning to Marienberg, as sure of his course as a homing pigeon.

We all knew of him by hearsay, but Jim and the huge missionary were old friends. He climbed aboard by the simple means of stepping from the deck-rail of his schooner up and over the lower deck-rail of ours. Jim left me unceremoniously, charming as I was, and together they disappeared for a while into the skipper's cabin. Twenty minutes later Father Kirschbaum climbed down once more to the Gabriel, calling back a cordial welcome for us when we should arrive at Marienberg the next day. The little Gabriel's staunch engine began functioning amid the usual excitement of her native crew, as she set out fearlessly up the river once more.

It was high time to be asleep. And so I took over to Brearly the pillow he had placed behind my back, and went below to my tiny cabin.

FANNY PRICE'S ARRIVAL

"Afraid of everybody, ashamed of herself, and longing for the home she had left, she could scarcely speak without crying." . . . A touching scene from "Mansfield Park" by Jane Austen (1775-1817) the great realist, a contemporary of Walter Scott, the famous romanticist. (English).

SOME OUTSTANDING REPRESENTATIVES OF THE NATIONS AT WASHINGTON

Peace lovers realize that agencies like the League of Nations and the World Court at The Hague must result in disarmament of nations. The first of the Arm Conference was held in Washington, D. C. (1921-1922) between representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy. While the capital ship-tonnage of these nations was stipulated in ratio 5-5-3-1.75-1.75, the conference unfortunately failed to secure the limitation of light cruisers, submarines and aircraft. (World's History).

THE EAR
(Science)

It is a dual sense organ for hearing and balance. The ear consists of the external ear (shell-like outer ear and a canal), the middle ear (tympanic chamber, separated from the outer ear by the ear-drum and containing 3 small bones incus, or anvil, malleus, or hammer, strapes or stirrup) and the inner ear, comprising the cochlea (containing the organ of Corti, sensitive to sounds) and the semi-circular canals filled with liquid, the latter recording and reporting alterations in the position of the body (organ of equilibrium). The Eustachian tube equalizes the air pressure on both sides of the ear drum. (Caldwell, Skinner, Tietz: Biological Foundations of Education).

ROENTGEN OR X-RAYS

Left: Direct electric current connected to + and — electrodes of a tube containing a rarified gas produces "cathode rays" (a stream of electrons issuing from the cathode); the gas becomes luminous, showing characteristic colors: red (hydrogen), pale green (carbon dioxide), deep red (neon), etc. (used for illuminated signs). In a highly evacuated tube if the cathode rays strike a metal target (anticathode), the impact produces very short electromagnetic waves (not visible on account of shortness), called Roentgen (after the discoverer) or X-rays, which penetrate most of the solids and affect the photographic plate. They became of great importance in the medical science (exploring the inside of the body, destruction of malignant cells) and technology (detecting flaws in castings, etc.). Right: X-ray picture of teeth, showing abscesses (after Hansen). (Parsons: Everyday Science).

THE THEORY OF RELATIVITY

Euclid (3rd cent. B. C.) in his Elements of Geometry (science of space and measurement) defined the line as continuation of points (1 dimension), the plane as that of lines (2 dim.) and the space as the continuation of planes (3 dim.). In the eighteenth century different geometries (hyperbolic, elliptic and perspective) were evolved, later Rieman and Minkovsky introduced the time element as fourth dimension, connecting geometry with physics. Utilizing their work Dr. Albert Einstein pronounced the special (1905) and general (1915) principle of relativity which is the development to their final conclusions of the following premises: 1. All phenomena of space, time and motion are established only by comparison to other location, time and motion, hence they are relative. 2. The laws of nature are universal, hence they apply everywhere.

In consequence length, time, mass, gravitation are not fixed but vary with the conditions of observation similar to the color of a body varying with the kind of light in which it is seen. Some conclusions of the theory: The law of conservation of energy is reconfirmed, that of the matter—by showing it as kinetic energy (transforming in other kind)—denied; gravitation as a drawing force between masses does not exist, but there is a gravitational field which, like the electromagnetic field, represents stored energy in space acting on other form of energies as matter and light. Ether, the hypothetical medium of wave propagation, is done away with. Gravitational field "bends" the light rays. Einstein calculated f. i, that a light beam passing near the sun will be deflected by 1."74. This was corroborated by photographing stars seen near the sun during total solar eclipse and comparing the position of the star given by the camera with its true (calculated) position (above). Though fundamentally differing in conception, the 4 and 3 dimension geometry and physics give negligible differences in the numerical results, except by dealing with very great velocities near that of the light (186,300 miles per second) as f. i. in case of cathode rays and electrons emitted by radioactive substances.

CONFERENCE FOR THE LIMITATION OF NAVAL ARMAMENT AT GENEVA (1927)

A new attempt toward the reduction of light cruisers, submarines and aircraft was made at the Geneva Conference in 1927, ending in complete break-up. Thus competition for mastery on the seas and in the air continued. The third Naval Arm Conference in London (1930) placed parity above reduction. The consequence will be the construction of more ships, a more modern well-rounded fleet instead of the present. According to Frank H. Simonds, representative of the Review of Reviews at the London Conference: "In 1936 (the time of a new arm conference) all the navies of the world will be incalculably fitter for conflict under modern tactical conditions." (World's History).

PYROXYLIN PLASTICS

Cotton treated with a diluted mixture of nitric and sulphuric acid is converted into cellulose nitrate (pyroxylin) which is transparent and soluble in ether and alcohol. Concentrated acids or longer duration of reaction will produce unsoluble guncotton. Pyroxylin heated with camphor and alcohol in a closed vessel gives a horny, flexible, strong product (plastic at the boiling point of water) called celluloid. Pyroxylin dissolved in ether-alcohol is spread out in thin layers, dried and coated with silver bromide (light sensitive) suspended in gelatin, gives the photographic (movie) film. Left: Nitrating cotton. Right: Inspecting the sheet of photographic film. Shatterproof (safety) glass for autos is made by two thin sheets of glass pasted together by a sheet of pyroxylin. Quickly drying pyroxylin laquers (for autos) are its solution in amyiacetat or butyl alcohol mixed with pigments. The solvent evaporates quickly, leaving the colored pyroxylin as a smooth adhering coating. (Deming: General Chemistry).

Ain't Made Up Mind Yet

Well, vacation plans are switched again. First, we were going to the mountains. Then, the seashore. Now, we're better placed than ever.

We're still in a strategic spot between them both. If we feel the seashore urge coming on we can rush in that direction. If the mountain complex boils over we can scramm to the hills.

It's tough work figuring the right spot. Just when we make up our mind our hat falls off.

It's all due to the alluring pamphlets mailed around the zodiac by the railroad companies.

If we went to Yellowstone Park we would miss the roar of Niagara. If we tour to the petrified orchard we would always regret never having been to fair Carcassonne and the natural sunken gardens of the Mississippi delta.

Last week we got 65 circulars from the Wanderlust Committee. All urged us to go in different directions as often as possible. Man is inquisitive. But he is also mortal and is only allowed 100 pounds of baggage with his astral body. Therefore, we ask the railroads to take us off their summer sucker lists and to send us but one booklet extolling the health virtues of Kamchatka terraces and the beautiful scenery inside the Simplon Tunnel.

We're going to leave town if we have to ride a bicycle, averaging about 20 groans to the mile. We have $62 left to squander on the vacation and we don't intend to spend it on a world tour of Australia or Java.

We're going to see America. When those 62 bills evaporate into the investigated air we want to be near one of President Roosevelt's reforestation camps. We will rush right in and start smacking a tree for supper. We will ask for a package of seeds to plant. You can always eat a package of seeds.

And, as the tree ain't expected to grow for 20 years, you can place plenty of confidential distance between yourself and the scene of the culinary crime.

U. S. Shipping Menaced

Expert Leadership Is Required to Repel the British Attack on the American Merchant Marine

Before the World Economic Conference has been in session a week, the British government, on behalf of British shipping interests, has opened its insidious attack upon the American merchant marine.

In the course of his address to the conference at one of its first sessions, Mr. Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, served notice of the intention of the British delegation to make "a determined effort" to bring about "the reduction and the eventual abolition of export and shipping subsidies by international agreement."

In this onslaught upon the American merchant marine, the British diplomacy is maneuvering to obtain the assistance of Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Holland and, if possible, Germany and France.

Against this aggregation of foreign shipping interests which have been built up by American patronage and the backing of their own governments and peoples, the United States can count upon the co-operation of only Italy and Japan.

What is the government at Washington going to do about it? What member of the American delegation to the London conference is qualified to speak for the American merchant marine and organize in its defense?

Before the American delegation to the London conference was appointed, the Hearst newspapers urged that its membership include Admiral Hutch I. Cone, the able chairman of the United States Shipping Board, or some other American equally competent to present the case for the American merchant marine.

The promptness with which the British government and its European allies have challenged the right of the American people to provide and maintain an adequate merchant marine proves that the American delegation has a fight on its hands that must be given expert leadership, if America's case is to be fairly presented.

It is not too late for the Department of State to dispatch Admiral Cone to London to take up the British challenge. Until he can get there, the American delegation should refuse to enter into any agreement that hamstrings the freedom of the American Congress to continue its upbuilding of the American merchant marine in accord with traditional American policy.

As Senator Copeland of New York recently said, when British shipping interests forced this question on the agenda of the London conference:

"It is laughable to have the British find fault with ship subsidies. If anybody in the world has been generously treated, it is the British shipowner. Every informed person knows how far Great Britain has gone in support of her merchant marine.

"It would be thrillingly welcome to British interests for them to learn that the United States has cast adrift our developing fleets.

As the British tiger consumed our abandoned commerce, there would be a broad smile on the face of the tiger."

Refusal to pay the war debts they owe to the United States is within the power of the debtor governments of Europe.

But it is not within the power of any foreign government or coalition of governments to deprive the American people of their right to provide and maintain their own merchant marine.

If they lose this right, they will have only the pusillanimity of the American delegation to the London conference to blame.

Waterfront Improvement

Federal Appropriation for Highway Purposes Can Be Utilized to Modernize the Wharves.

Councilman George S. Oliver makes the interesting point that inasmuch as the main feature of the proposed improvement of the river banks in the Golden Triangle is the construction of a boulevard the city can quite properly ask for a direct federal appropriation for the work

This is based on the fact that the government plans to spend hundreds of millions of dollars for highway improvement as part of its public works program.

Water street and Duquesne way, if converted into broad highways, would fit well into a number of interstate traffic routes, and consequently could be improved at federal government expense without putting undue strain on the federal authority to pay for the work.

Mr. Oliver's plan, if successful, will give Pittsburgh a much needed betterment—the improvement of the waterfront—at a minimum of expense to the local taxpayers.

Useful for Ballyhoo!

The Crude Pictures That Mr. Saint-Gaudens Has Gathered Will At Least Provoke Discussion.

Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, is back from a tour of Europe, in which he gathered paintings for hanging in the institute's international exhibition next October.

Mr. Saint-Gaudens announces that "all the possible aspects of contemporary painting — academic art, advanced art, the gracious and the crude . . ." will be presented at the exhibition.

This means we are to have some more of those horrid daubs, marked neither by beauty or verisimilitude, that have been exhibited at other recent exhibitions and have even taken prizes.

Well, by outraging the public's sensibilities and provoking violent denunciation, they will serve the useful purpose of getting the exhibition talked about.

Danger Ahead!

Traffic Safety Improves, But Some Potentially Adverse Factors Are Entering the Situation

The Better Traffic Committee reports that Pittsburgh is well on the way to repeating this year as "the safest city in America."

The four traffic deaths in May constituted a new low record, comparing with 11 in May of 1932. The five months total of 41 compares with 60 last year, a decrease of 31.7 per cent.

But look out! Some new hazards are entering into the situation.

With the return of prosperity more automobiles are appearing on the streets and highways. Auto sales are increasing notably.

Moreover, the closing of the schools for the summer vacation is releasing thousands of children to the streets at hours when they are ordinarily indoors.

Extra precautions must be taken if we are to improve or even maintain our safety performance.

With treaties but an empty sham
And pacts a vain pretense,
The time has come for Uncle Sam
To write his own defense
In letters bold across the sky
And plain to every alien eye.

A navy sunk beneath the tide,
Scrapped by a fountain pen;
An army scattered far and wide
And sadly short of men—
Our first defense is in the air,
And it is well to keep it there.

Prep-School for Marriage

The girl of today has 10 chances of making a happy marriage to every one that her mother had.

* * *

Oh, yes, I know! The "pickings" are not so good, the men are not so marriage-minded, and it's harder to get them to the altar than it was in the good old Gay Nineties; but at least you know what you're getting when you DO marry.

* * *

The perfect frankness and comradeship between the sexes, from their kindergarten days up and on through their college days or office days together give them a revealing north light on each other, which may kill a lot of romantic illusions, but ought to save them a lot of jolts and disappointments.

In the old days, when there were only two kinds of men—marrying men and "dangerous men"—a kiss meant either a wedding or a scandal. But the time has passed when a man's mind was supposed to leap right to the altar the moment he felt himself weakening for a girl. Usually, he leaps the other way!

* * *

And, in the meantime, the girl with a half dozen or more men friends has a golden opportunity to make comparisons among the various specimens of the obvious sex. If she makes a fool-headed choice, it is not for lack of traffic lights.

* * *

It is sometimes a great relief to a girl to be able to pal about with a man who has no "intentions," either matrimonial or otherwise, and whom she can trust not to make love to her nor to suspect her of deep dark designs on HIM.

* * *

In these days, a man doesn't hear wedding-bells and feel rice slipping down his collar every time he takes a special fancy to a girl. He may enjoy playing around with her just because he finds her amusing or witty or because they enjoy seeing the same shows or dancing at the same places.

It may thrill his vanity to be seen with her because she is an eyeful and always "looks like a million dollars." Or he may invite her to dinner or the prom, just because the other two girls he invited were already dated.

* * *

But the girl who has a half dozen men pals, whom she can call on at any moment to make a fourth at bridge, fill in at a party or share a pair of passes with her, enjoys a luxury that no girl ever enjoyed in the romantic old days of blushes and chaperons.

* * *

She gets a perspective on the opposite sex and a pre-view of matrimony, which should save her from starting out on the long journey with the wrong partner and from skidding and smash-ups after the wedding. It's better than a prep school!

* * *

Just why Reno should go on doing such a thriving business in these days when girls and men know so well what they are getting and why they are taking it, him or her, is an unfathomable mystery!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 21.—I frequently wonder if other scribblers to limber up mornings, crank up mentally as it were, find dashing off a friendly letter beneficial. To me it is like clearing the throat before after dinner speaking. For years I've had a half-dozen such patient correspondents.

An old-fashioned idea, but grand fun! Among the most faithful have been Meredith Nicholson, George Ade, Lloyd Scholl and Gilbert White in Paris. In addition we often exchange extracts from others which are passed to Dick Berlin, Lee Olwell, Ed Nolan, Henry Sell and Cobbie.

In a workaday whirl it's grand to "play post time, the coach is coming!" A carry-over from small-town days. I had a post office lock box when I was 11 years old and was a constant subscriber to "Send Dime and Get Big Mail, Lock Box 48, Department J, Muscatine, Iowa."

The gang often trailed from school to watch me open the box. And did I feel a big shot! Especially if there was a pink card among catalouges and form letters reading "Call for package—too large for box. Postmaster." My ebullience usually flowered into skinning the cat at Bell's hitching rack on the way home.

There's relaxation, too, looking for comic touches in the subdued pageantry of cultivated classes flowing through such avenues as Park and Madison. This afternoon one of the levities was a puckish gentleman who stepped out of the Waldorf. He hailed a taxi and with infinite and somewhat teetering pains placed his cane inside. "I just want to show this stick," he explained to the driver. "I can get along without it." And he zig-zagged up the street.

One of the cheeriest spots along Fifth is, oddly enough, the reading room for blind on first floor of the public library. The haven is easily reached and the line of sightless tap-tapping their way or being led begins early. Books in Braille, beautifully bound in bright colors, are hand done by volunteers. There is a blind proof reader, a Columbia graduate and Phi Beta Kappa, incidentally a very joyous gentleman. He inspects all books before they are accepted and bound.

Lupe Velez, skyrocketing into bursts of temperament in her dressing room or on her rounds of the town, does it badly. Although press agents ventilate her didoes extravagantly. Only people of enormous talents, it strikes me, should indulge such pyrotechnics. Duse, for instance. Or Richard Mansfield! Not Lupe!

Nearly every writer has his special brand of memento to stimulate memory during those aridities when ideas come to a full stop. Michael Arlen told me there was a stretch of Birdcage Walk in London that spurred him on. While walking there one day he felt more acutely than ever before his poverty and inability to write. After success when he felt frustrate he would go back.

It's proverbial Eugene O'Neill writes trilogies on the sea coast. Dreiser has done best work in neighborhood of Washington Square and David Graham Phillips could only harness his thoughts standing at a bookkeeper's desk. When the late Dr. George Dorsey found himself mentally sterile there was an old boarding house district in Chicago whither he fled and soon found himself whirling with literary promises. Peter B. Kyne can write short stories anywhere. But California alone gives zest for full length novels.

Going to Tappan's near Coney for a shore dinner is a seasonal rite among New Yorkers of another generation. It stands—a pleasant rambling shingled house in the yard overlooking Sheepshead Bay—as it did 60 years ago. The same dinner is served as when opened. The waiters are colored and a Negro quartet harmonize in southern airs wandering from table to table. It's always crowded.

A returned voyager to Pier 16 today crimsoned because custom inspection revealed false faces from Austria for his children. He should have piped the day some ladies, also docking, were telling they always read my stuff. Suddenly an inspector stuck out his arm with: "Is this your'n?" He held the lower section of my zebra striped flannels. "Certainly not!" I exclaimed with a the-very-idea sniff. To this day we use the leftover undershirt, that matched, to polish the brass door-knobs.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Every now and then the scientists invent a term that says a fistful. For example, that phrase "DEFENSE MECHANISM."

That phrase, IF YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO FOLLOW IT THROUGH, will tell you more about yourself and your fellow man than a dozen heavy volumes on psychology.

What does it mean? Just what it says. Defense mechanism is a mechanism for defense.

What kind of defense?

DEFENSE AGAINST LIFE.

But why should we want a defense against life?

Because life is increasingly complicated and dangerous and uncomfortable.

And we humans are still weak and timid, lazy and fuzzy minded.

So then, what?

So then, unless we're unusually wise and brave, we look around for something that will protect our wobbly spines and yet, at the same time, save our faces.

But where will we find it?

Obviously, there's no such contraption in the stores. We're forced to make it for ourselves, in the secret places of our minds and hearts. And each man makes his own Defense Mechanism according to his own need and nature.

There's Mrs. Brown. What's her great fear; her most urgent need? Her great fear is that she'll lose her indifferent husband. Her urgent need is for something that will keep that husband by her side.

Other wives have this same fear and need, and meet it quite differently. They hustle about and provide such alluring homes and delightful companionship that the most reluctant male "stays put" voluntarily. Or if they happen to be of such spunky nature that they don't want reluctant males at any price, they check them off the list and get going on their own.

Mrs. Brown is too lazy and too timid to adopt either of these expedients. But she contrives something actually effective.

SICK HEADACHES.

Now there are sick headaches AND sick headaches. Some are actual illnesses needing medical treatment. But a great percentage of them are WISH FULFILLMENTS — and highly practical ones.

For, as a Defense Mechanism against the restlessness of philandering papas and rebellious sons and daughters, Sick Headaches can't be beat! Forthwith, the laziest and most cussed Mamma becomes A Martyr—and what happens if you desert or neglect a Martyr? Try and do it.

But that's only one example of a Defense Mechanism. There are scores of others.

There's the man who can't meet the cruel competition of modern business, and achieves rheumatism, or nervous indigestion, as a way out; or starts inventing something; or contrives to be always "picked on" and fired by brutal bosses.

And, in every family, there's at least one example of the Wonderful Young Genius who is so sensitive and talented that she, or he, can't possibly be expected to wash the dishes or clean out the garage.

For Defense Mechanisms are legion, and if you want one bad enough, almost anything comes in handy. Even those experiences which should most enrich the soul—GRIEF; ADVERSITY; REMORSE; RELIGION—even these can become rackets.

In simple slang, that's what a Defense Mechanism is—a racket. Just another way of putting your own selfish schemes across. And each one of us has at least one. Me? I have a dozen!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You have several disagreeable habits which you follow unconsciously.

They have become a part of you because of their many years of use.

People remark about them, your friends wish you would get rid of them.

None wishes to speak to you about them, for fear you may be sensitive.

Now if you really are anxious to be free from little annoying habits which detract from your attractiveness why don't you ask some of your friends to point them out to you.

If they comply, accept the word of these friends as being honest and extended to you for the sole purpose of helping you.

Don't take the attitude that your friends should like you despite your failings.

Of course they like you but that does not make them blind to your faults, nor any less displeased when they come in contact with your bad habits.

They can excuse, while being annoyed, and silent to you on the subject.

You are not expected to change your individuality.

You are liked or disliked for your individuality.

But you can change disagreeable habits that are mechanical faults.

What are yours and when will you begin to cut them out?

Sheriff Says He Found Murderer's Face in Photograph of Murdered Man's Eyes—Majorca An Earthly Paradise

By EDWIN C. HILL

IT'S a curious fact of life that the most fantastic and incredible inventions of fiction have a way of turning up as sober fact, on Page 1 of our newspapers. Jules Verne wrote "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." Years passed, and the submarine out-marveled his marvelous fancy. Mister Kipling imagined the trans-Atlantic flight of a dirigible in his "With the Night Mail." Thirty years later Dr. Hugo Eckner drove the Graf Zeppelin over the Atlantic almost precisely as Kipling fortold it would be done.

These startling coincidences of fancy and fact turn up, even in that mysterious borderline between life and death. A short time ago there was a murder in Columbus County, N. C. There was no clue, no trace of the murderer. But Sheriff Hargrove recalled a fiction story in which the photographed eyes of a dead man revealed, in images fixed upon the retina, a terrible secret. The Sheriff took a picture of the eyes of the murdered man. That photograph revealed to him, he positively asserts, the face of the murderer. He arrested the man and a confession followed. The fiction story which gave him the idea was Rudyard Kipling's "At the End of the Passage."

Heat and Nerves Produce Insults

FOUR officials of the British government in India, met, as customary for a week-end in the bungalow of one of their number and played whist in a hundred-and-one degrees of heat. Exhausted and nerve-strained, they played their cards and quarreled in uncontrollable irritation at mere existence.

Their host, Hummil, grew intolerably insulting. But the doctor, Spurstow, with his eyes on Hummil's white, pinched face and his unnaturally large eyes, kicked his friends under the table. No man resented the savage personalities that dripped from the lips of the nerve tortured host.

And after two of the four had ridden away, Hummil confessed to the doctor that he couldn't sleep. A blind face that cried and could not wipe its eyes, lay in wait for him in the dark. He dared not give way to sleep, in the dreadful fear that the blind and faceless thing would seize him. He made it a habit to rest on an elbow, with a spur in the bed under him to sting him if he fell back. Dr. Spurstow injected morphine and the next day departed for his own station.

A week later when the three returned to Hummil's bungalow, they found their friend dead in bed, and in the staring eyes terror beyond the expression of any pen. They questioned Hummil's servant who said to them: "Heavenborn, in my poor opinion, this, that was my master, has descended into the Dark Places, and there has been caught because he was not able to escape with sufficient speed."

And later, when those things were done that had to be done, Doctor Spurstow said, absently:

" 'Tisn't in medical science."

"What?"

"Things in a dead man's eye."

"For goodness sake, leave that horror alone!" said Lowndes. "I've seen a native die of pure fright when a tiger chivvied him. I know what killed Hummil."

'The deuce you do. I'm going to try to see."

And the doctor retreated into the bathroom with a Kodak camera. After a few minutes there was the sound of something being hammered to pieces, and he emerged, very white indeed.

'Have you got a picture?" said Mottram. "What does the thing look like?"

"It was impossible of course. You needn't look, Mottram. I've torn up the films. There was nothing there. It was impossible."

"That," said Lowndes, very distinctly, watching the shaking hand striving to relight the pipe, "is a damned lie."

Too Many Americans Going to Majorca

IF YOU take the little steamer at Marseilles, it will cost about ten dollars of your money and 18 hours of your time to get to Majorca, largest of the Baleario Islands, and one of the few Paradises left on this earth. That was how I found it, but it seems, today, that too many Americans are settling in this Mediterranean fairyland where one can live like a king on a dollar a day.

The police of Palma, a city of 80,000, arrested and fined a quartet of our citizens on the technical charge of not registering their passports. This is strange news, for the Majorcans are a happy, most obliging people. Apparently their dreamy existence was disturbed by too many restless Yankees, and one can scarcely blame them for declining to become a vanishing race, like the Indians, before a horde of advancing Americans.

Yet I would brave arrest to walk again through the flower scented groves and the fields of olive, where the whole gracious island lies under the southern sun like an imprisoned rainbow and glows like a moonstone under the incredible stars.

And to sit at early morning coffee under the heavenly purple of the bougainvillea and gaze out over the blue sea at the dancing sails of the fisher-folk and be summoned back to earth and material needs by the soft and gentle voices of plump Maria: "Buenos Dias, senor. Behold! The good God smiles with us this morning!"

KNEE BREECHES

By Winifred Black

No knee breeches for our new ambassador to Great Britain.

L. P.'s for Senator Robert Worth Bingham—no matter how often he goes to the court of St. James—morning or evening, by plain daylight or by the gleaming sickle of the London moon—our new ambassador is going to wear plain American evening dress.

Three cheers and a tiger for Senator Bingham.

Isn't it just about time for Americans to realize that the more American they are the more respect they will get, in the court of St. James, or any other court on the face of the whirling globe?

Very few Americans look like anything but a joke in "costume."

It takes a motion picture actor to carry off a sword and knee breeches and not to look like something out of the comic section of the daily newspaper.

Plain clothes, plain living, plain speaking—these are the things that will keep the dignity of the American ambassador to any country on earth.

Let's get back to the old American ideal—let's show Europe that we are not ashamed of our plain, homespun ways.

A raven is a melancholy bird to see—but there's a certain plain dignity about his coat of black feathers, isn't there?

Paint those feathers green and scarlet and blue—and you have neither a cockatoo nor a bird of paradise, nor a peacock, but just a silly old raven trying to look like something that he is not, never was, and never can be.

The American eagle is bald—there's no denying it; he's as bald as as egg—but somehow we like him that way.

He's the bird of America and when we buy him a toupee of feathers or paint his bald head to look like that of a crested quail—then it's time for our representatives abroad to "dress up" in court costume.

Don't you like to think of a great gorgeous room crowded with uniforms and court costumes, and in the midst of them walking simply as he would walk at home in his own country, a plain American in the simple pride of his own plain unadorned dress, such as he would wear in his own country?

And by the way—wouldn't it be nice if Mr. Bingham's idea about the knee breeches would boomerang back to this country?

How about it girls—wouldn't it be a relief to see some of the hikers and the golf players, yes, even the tennis champions, back in the decent seclusion of the well known "long pants"?

The average male figure is sometimes a trifle knobby about the knees—have you noticed it.

Anyway here's how to our new ambassador to England and may he stay plain American—as long as he stays ambassador.
